Welcome to the wonderfully wicked world of Banjo-Kazooie, where a hankling bear and a loof-beaked bird take on a witch so evil that even other witches hate her. Our eight-page preview explores the magic, the mayhem, the mystery and the mischief.

It struggles like a bunny. It evades our shiny-silver robes. Then it unleashes a ball of lightning powerful enough to sing an army. What is it? Porygon, one of the magical monsters of Nintendo's Pokémon. A Game Boy revolution is about to arrive.

Are cutesy games not fun? Does violence make a game? Write us to let us know where you stand in the debate. Or maybe you've heard a rumor and you'd like to know the truth. Send us a letter or e-mail and we'll will set the record straight.

Good, Clean Fun

Nintendo has a reputation for having good games that most parents like, but not all kids like these sorts of games. I found the PC version of Duke Nukem much more fun than the N64 version, and I think it is due to the more violent and graphic content of the game. Lately, N64 games have been rather childish. Take Snowboard Kids, for example. Who wants to play as a midjet rat with a giant nose? People want to play as people. Top-selling games like Resident Evil 2 and Tomb Raider II all contain graphic violence. And you have to admit that, if you put someone like Lara Croft in a game, male gamers are sure to buy it. If Nintendo would put aside its knee-up-to-the-parents attitude, there would be a lot more sales of N64 games.

Rick Robbins
Via the Internet

Shirley White • Kopycat Beach, Virginia

I am very disappointed in the selection of N64 games for the mature audience. Most of your games are very kid-like and unrealistic. The only game that comes close is GoldenEye, which is still unrealistic. Why doesn't Nintendo come out with some games like Resident Evil 2?

Matt Balsley & Mike Glenbucki
Bellevue, NE

So, the Snowboard Kids are cutesy but Lara Croft—a woman who could do bench-presses without using her arms—can't? And what makes Resident Evil so real, and GoldenEye not? (As we recall, there are no such things as monsters and zombies.) Gaming maturity isn't measured by how much violence or virtual women you like to see. Duke Nukem, Resident Evil 2 and Tomb Raider II are all great games, but the gratuitous blood and skin and nothing in game play, and the following two letter-writers seem to realize that...

I have no problem with blood and gore, except when they are the only things in a game. Far too many games are being hyped exclusively for being check-full of blood and gore. Don't get me wrong—I love blowing things up, but it gets repetitive after a while. The insulting part about it all is that companies will make a bad game, pump it up with blood, then expect us to fall over it. Unintentionally, they appear to be right. As I recall, Duke Nukem was a rather popular game. A game does not need blood to be good—just look at Super Mario 64. What a game needs is depth.

Marco Fazah
Via the Internet

I have a bold statement to make: Many games are missing the point of video games. They are not about being adult-oriented or having good graphics; they are about having fun (hence, the Fun Machine). Look at Nintendo's pros (as in professionals). They are all adults and they look at games as any game should. They look to see if they are fun.

D. Andrew Lorenzo
Via the Internet

Clean fun is still fun...So the next time you see a game that stars a cuddly animal who's incapable of ever gut- ting or maiming someone, give it a try. It might be fun.

Luigi, Sean, Roger, Timothy and George

What's going on? On the Internet these are codes on how to get Luigi in Super Mario 64. I know they aren't true, but where did they all come from? I almost believed the rumors, because there were so many. I just want to know the truth.

Jacquelyn Heinz
Via the Internet

In the very early stages of SM64, Luigi was a playable character. In the end, however, he was taken out so there'd be more room to create other areas in the game. Since he was never programmed into the final version of the game in the first place, no code will ever make Luigi appear in SM64.

In the most recent issue of a gaming magazine, they reveal the last cheat in GoldenEye 007. It's called the All Bonks (Multi Cheat, and it lets you play as Sean Connery, Roger Moore, Timothy Dalton or George Lazenby in Multi-player Mode. They have pretty steep requirements. After you've gotten every other cheat, beat Antec on 007 difficulty in less than nine minutes

Devin Arch • Glendale, California

Jason Hall • Detroit, Washington

with the enemy settings at 200% Health, 100% Damage, 100% Accuracy, and 100% Reaction Speed. Could you confirm if this trick is for real? I personally think it is an April Fools' joke and would really appreciate it if you could tell me the truth.

Ryan Whaley
Via the Internet

The Information Super Highway can also be a Misinformation Super Highway. We've seen this code, which is entirely bogus, circulating on the Internet. Apparently there are a lot of cyber geeks out there who like to make up codes with elaborate or impossible requirements just so people will waste their time attempting to find something that doesn't exist. (We can't confirm if the cheat was intended as an April Fools' gag or a cruel trick, but, for any of you who need to be prompted by a laugh track, don't take pages 80 and 81 of NP Volume 10? seriously—that was our April Fools' section.) If you're still striving to find secret GoldenEye characters, set your sights on this month's Classified Information.

More Rumors Debunked

I heard the game GoldenEye 007 was being discontinued because a Tomorrow Never Dies game is coming out. Is it true that it's not going to be made anymore?

Nate Hamilton
Via the Internet

Whoever makes these rumors up could have a successful

Wesley Sisk • Orlando, Florida

Max Zivley • New Hope, Pennsylvania

career at The Enquirer. We're still making GoldenEye 007, and we'll continue to make it. As you know, GoldenEye is wildly popular, and that's the reason why you're having such a hard time finding it. Quite simply, stores here are selling out faster than retailers could have ever predicted.

Pokémon Mania

I have been studying up on the Pokémon craze over in Japan. They have sold over 10 million games and the way it has affected their culture boggles the mind. They have all sorts of little figurines and other little trinkets based on the game. There's a Pokémon TV and radio show. The closest thing that we can compare to the craze is Tamagotchi, although the Pokémon craze is on a far broader scale. I think that Nintendo should release Pokémon in the U.S. RPG fans will gobble up the game. And the fact is, these little creatures are adorable. Here's hoping the revolution can cross the Pacific and reach American soil.

Mike Williams
Via the Internet

The revolution will be saving, or, saturating, America very soon. This fall, Pokémon (pronounced POKAY-mah) for Game Boy and the Pokémon TV series will be reaching North America. We're

Zero-Zelda Diet

Please, I implore you. Stop showing screen shots and printing info regarding Zelda 64. I'm on a zero-Zelda diet. I am trying as hard as possible not to look at any Zelda 64 information until I get the game. I was doing pretty well with my diet, but then I looked at the Turbo 2 shots, and right below them was a new batch of Zelda 64 shots. I wish I hadn't known the town scenes were so close to being photo-realistic! Please limit the Zelda 64 info to full pages so that we won't accidentally look at them if we happen to be reading something else on the page.

Dan White
North Olmsted, OH

Cops. Then we shouldn't have printed your letter so near the Power Charts. Whatever you do, don't look at page 8 or else you'll see yet another drop-down amazing screen shot from the jaw-dropping, awe-inspiring Zelda 64.

Rating Now Playing

Up until recently, I was thinking of canceling my subscription because I thought your magazine was nothing but propaganda. I really thought your mag was a hype engine. But recently, you introduced Now Playing's new system of rating; the games by averaging all of the reviewers' opinions. This has really helped me with my purchasing decisions and has renewed my trust in the NP crew!

Rich Fineman
Mandeville, LA

What are your ratings based on? I don't think I've ever seen a game receive a perfect 10 rating. So when you give a game a 9.0 rating in graphics (as you did for 1080° Snowboarding in Volume 106), obviously, the game must be graphically beautiful. But why didn't it receive a 10? If you've never rated a game or any element of it with a 10, then how can you know what you're comparing a 9.0 game against? You are choosing numbers on a scale where you have no idea what a game with a perfect rating would look like.

Ryan Barrett • Blizzard, Dink

Eric J. Calcara
Via the Internet

Your rating system works sort of like the Olympics. The ratings are an average of our ten evaluators' scores, which in turn are an average of five different scored categories (graphics, play control, game design, satisfaction, and sound). Many evaluators have awarded 10-scores in individual categories, but those scores were averaged out by the other categories. Evaluator Marty, in fact, gave 1080° Snowboarding a perfect 10, meaning he gave the game a 10 in all five categories. However, in order for the game to receive an overall rating of 10, all ten evaluators would have to be in perfect agreement.

Hooray for Hollywood?

What is your problem? Never put Hollywood Hogan holding Sting in a headlock on the cover—it's disrespectful to Sting and the WCW. Hogan has never beaten Sting, but Sting has beaten Hogan three times. Plus, I have played against Hogan on the hardest mode of WCW Vs. NWO: World Tour using Sting, and I've never lost. Nintendo and THQ would make more money if Sting was on the cover disrespecting the NWO (New Wuss Order). If you still can't realize that, then I will just have to put Hogan in a Stinger Splash, Scorpion Death Drop and Scorpion Death Lock myself!

Matt D'Amore
Bouffort, SC

Um, well, that's not really Sting on the cover of Volume 105—it's just Ted Danson masquerading as The Crow.

MAJOR LEAGUE™ Baseball FEATURING KEN GRIFFEY JR.

Major League Baseball Featuring Ken Griffey Jr. is the closest thing you'll come to real baseball short of walking through the gate at the ballpark!

From the innovative mechanics to the stunning, lifelike animation, MLB Featuring Ken Griffey Jr. will impress you right from the opening pitch. The huge polygonal players bat, run and throw like real major leaguers, and you'll really see the power of a Griffey swing and the finesse in a Randy Johnson slider. Even the smallest details—like players rubbing dirt on their bats when a pitcher waits too long between throws—contribute to the amazing realism and big league atmosphere. We'll start our review with a quick glance at the game's features, followed by a few strategic tips and a "hot stove" analysis of each of the 30 teams. With three difficulty levels and a host of options, MLB can be played either as a sim or as a swing-bat-bat-bat arcade game. But no matter which way you want to play, you'd better pop some corn and cook up a few dogs, 'cause The Game is about to start!

Modes

Exhibition

MLB has four play modes, starting with the single Exhibition game. One or two players can choose from all 30 big league clubs, including the new Tampa Bay Devil Rays and Arizona Diamondbacks expansion teams. In all modes, players come armed with their 1997 year-end stats, and all team rosters are based on the 1996 spring training lineup.

World Series

World Series mode allows one player to challenge the computer or two players to go head-to-head in a best-of-seven series. Trading and free agency aren't allowed in Exhibition and World Series games, but you can adjust your pitching rotation and batting lineup to your heart's content.

Season

In this mode, players choose between a one-month pennant race, an 81-game half-season, and a full, 162-game schedule. Up to four players can participate, each one controlling a different team. This mode offers the most realism and options, including trades, free agency, injuries and more.

Stadium Tours

In the Exhibition and Home Run Derby modes, players can select any one of the 30 big league stadiums and take a tour of the field before the action begins. Press A to move forward, use the Control Stick to rotate and use the C Buttons to move up, down, right and left.

Take a tour and see if your buttons will have a chance of sending one over the center field wall!

Home Run Derby

In this mode, up to four players are given the chance to hit as many home runs as they can before they get ten outs. You can select any person on any team as your character, and multiple players can pick the same character. Any ball that does not go over the outfield fence will be considered an out. The person with the most home runs will be declared the winner and have his or her hit stats displayed on screen.

HOME RUN DERBY
NAME	HOME RUNS
MARK MCWEE	10
WINNER	10
174 AVG	100.00
18 HR	100.00
122 RB	100.00

Trades and Free Agency

If you need more power, better pitching or smarter defense, you can propose a trade with any team (with up to three players from either side) or sign someone from the list of free agents. There's no salary cap, but the computer will weigh the skills of the players against each other before accepting or rejecting a trade.

You won't get quality players in return for scraps. Give the other team something they need in return. Free agents aren't always the best, but you can pick them up easily.

Options

Skill Levels

In Exhibition and World Series mode, there are three skill levels: Rookie, Veteran and All-Star. As the difficulty level goes up, your batting average will likely come down—unless you're the next Ken Griffey Jr., of course!

Classic & Arcade Batting

MLB gives you two batting systems to choose from. With the Classic batting system, all you need to do is watch where the ball is going, and, if it looks good, take a swing. With the Arcade batting system, you'll need to match the batting cursor with the pitching cursor and then swing at the right moment to hit the ball.

Auto-Fielding

The Auto-Fielding option will run and catch for you, but you will still choose which base to throw to. While Auto-Fielding will probably help you climb the outfield wall and rob your opponent of a few homers, manual fielding isn't that difficult to master.

Transactions

Be sure to check the Transactions section of Sportswire daily. This will tell you who's been traded and which free agents have been signed and dropped. You never know who may be available suddenly to fill that gap in your outfield or shore up your sagging bullpen. The list of injured players is also helpful, and it includes estimates of how long each player will be sidelined.

If one of your players gets hurt, check the injuries list after the game. If the injury is serious, you may need to work on finding a long-term replacement for him.

Offense

The trick to Classic batting is to focus on the ball. Watch the way it moves and look for any habits the pitcher has. Does he always follow a fast ball with a slider?

Classic or Arcade?

The major difference between Classic and Arcade batting is that the Classic system is easier to use but more realistic and tougher to master. In Classic batting, the computer relies a lot on the player's programmed stats to determine how well a ball is hit. As a result, it's difficult to outperform those stats, unless your timing is always perfect.

And That Ball Is Outta Here!

The Arcade batting system is more challenging at first, but once you get the hang of it, it's much easier to get hits consistently, at least against the computer. With Classic batting, you have to watch the ball and rely more on your instincts to get a hit. With Arcade batting, you should focus on the pitching cursor instead. The cursor will show you where the pitch will cross the plate, and whichever way a pitch moves, the cursor will move, too. You'll have a better sense of whether a pitch will be a ball or a strike and be able to connect more often.

Arcaide batting will give you a much better sense of how and how much a pitch can move.

Leading Off & Stealing

Leading off by a step or three will give your runners a much better chance of advancing. The computer will rarely try to pick you off, but it will sometimes tell runners to advance, even if it looks like a hit will be caught, so be ready to send them back. Try to steal on very slow pitches only.

If you have two outs, use a hit-and-run strategy. If you get a hit, just let your runners go, no matter what it looks like. If it's caught, it won't matter anyway.

Playing the Mind Game

Pitching and batting are all about psyching out your opponent. You have to figure out what he's going to do and/or fool him as to what you're going to do.

Pitcher: Should I start off with a fast ball on the inside? If it's close to his hands, he'll either pop it up or send it toward first base, anyway.

Batter: So he thinks he can punch me out, eh? Well, how about I swing earlier and get a piece of—ah! Swung too soon that time!

Batter: Fast or slow? West or go? Pitcher: He probably thinks I'll throw a ball just to drag out the count, but that's where he's wrong. Just! Get! Here!

Defense

Power & Precision

Don't think that fastballs will always get the job done. Vary your pitches to keep the batter guessing, and toss pitches that, if hit, will go the way you want them to go. A pitch that's close to a batter's hands will tend to go in the direction he's swinging. A pitch that's out toward the end of the bat will tend to go the opposite way.

Keep an eye on your pitcher's finger level. Some pitchers retain good ball control when tired, others do not.

MLB PITCHER		MLB BATTER
NAME	STATUS	NAME	STATUS
JOHN SMITH	STARTER	MIKE JONES	STARTER
DAVE BROWN	RELIEVER	BOB WHITE	RELIEVER
ALICE GREEN	RELIEVER	CHARLIE BLACK	RELIEVER
FRANK BLUE	RELIEVER	HELEN RED	RELIEVER

Pop-Up

Even with manual timing, the computer will adjust a player's position if he's close to the catch target.

Grounder

Try to get ahead of ground balls and not chase them. Dive only if you're within two steps of the target.

Defensive Decisions

Beating a batter is unsportsmanlike, but if you don't want to face him, you can walk him intentionally by pitching outside. As for basic fielding, remember that you can run (Control Stick) and throw (C Buttons) at the same time. Yellow arrows will indicate the direction and distance to the ball. You should also practice climbing the wall (press B to jump) without bouncing off. You just might rob opponents of a few close homers. Manual or Auto-Fielding? Auto-Fielding is more reliable in most situations (especially on those infield bloopers), but it does take some of the thrill away.

Teams

EAST

Here's our "hot stove" analysis at each of the 30 major league teams for a fantasy 1998 season. While our tips tend to be on the realistic side, the Season mode also allows for a fantasy draft that will allow you to build your team from the ground up. Play ball!

Atlanta Braves

Atlanta Braves
1997: 1st place in NL East
Record: 101-61

Turner Field
Atlanta, GA
Opened: 1997
Capacity: 50,528

Despite some off-season trades, the Braves remain, arguably, the best team in baseball—they're at least the best in the NL East. The pitching rotation is better than any other in the majors, and the lineup has both power and consistency. We'll have to work hard at losing to miss getting into the playoffs.

Record: 92-70

Pro Player Stadium
Miami, FL
Opened: 1987
Capacity: 48,505

The Marlins definitely won't repeat their 1997 World Series win, but they likely won't be as bad as everyone says they'll be. Fernandez and Hernandez will be good anchors for the rotation, but you'll want to skip for other starters. If Sheffield's numbers fall through, shift Fontana to No. 3 in the batting order.

See who turns up in free agency in the first couple of weeks and unload starting pitchers Belisita and Johnson, if you can. Wait and see what Wagner gives you—or gives up—in the first month. The batting order should read this way: Sarmiento, Cruzalegui, White, Guerrero, Fullmer, Widger, Cabrera and Andrews.

Luckily for you, the verbal Todd Hundley won't be sidelined the season with a major calf injury, keeping a respectable starting lineup intact. If you can keep a lid on your pitchers ERA's and manage your save opportunities carefully, you should do well enough with the current squad. Maybe with you at the helm, the Mets will finally rise!

The Phillies' pitching rotation seems overclouded with right-handers, so some creative trades might be in order. Hang on to Stephenson, who is probably your second-best starter after Schilling. The lineup looks passable on paper, but it's not terribly consistent, and some players will be prone to injury, so give everyone rotating days off.

The Cubs aren't a great team, but they'll be a good one if you manage to squeeze a few more wins into it out of them. Blanton deserves a shot at the No. 2 spot in the lineup, but so does Morone. Give both of them a few outings against left- and right-handed pitchers and see how things shake out, or maybe just let them plateau.

In real life, Dave Sanders is back to playing football full time anyway, so we're going to go out on a limb and recommend that he lend one or two utility players, if necessary, to be shopped around for a No. 1 starting pitcher. The Astros have great corner-toe players in Bagwell and Alton, but some of the others may not live up to your expectations. The Brewers are making the move to the NL this year, and, with luck, they'll be able to celebrate the change with a few more runs batted in. The Pirates placed second in the NL Central race last year, and they could be at their best for No. 1, if they remain injury free. Wouldn't it be nice if the Cardinals had a break-out season in 1998? It could happen. McGwire is one of the top power hitters of all time, and DeShazo and Clayton are looking good. Don't let the fact that the Diamondbacks are a brand-new franchise get to you. They have proved hitting power in the lineup, and if you just lay back and don't swing at every thing that comes over the plate, you just might meet or even beat the real players' numbers. If Brees stays healthy and stays calm, he could rock up 18 wins this year.

Wily Alvarez will likely turn out to be a solid No. 1 starter for the Devil Rays, but the team's pitching talent falls off dramatically from there, so shop around the free agents at the beginning of the season. You might also want to flip flop Martinez and Boggs in the lineup—Boggs is getting older, but he still can produce.

The key for the Blue Jays will be in support. They have two great pitchers in Clemens (who should be No. 1 starter) and Hargett, and the rest of the rotation would look better if there were more offense. Lay off the last pitcher, work the counts, and see what develops. There's nowhere for the Jays to go but up!

The White Sox contenders or pretenders? The heart of the lineup is impressive (Thomas, Belle, Ventura), but the pitching can be scary at times. The Tigers are crossing the border from the AL East, and they have a good shot at challenging the Indians, too. ## Swing Away!

Ken Griffey Jr. is a player for the ages, and the game that bears his name is one, too. This title combines the ease of an arcade game with the depth of a sim, and if you have any interest in baseball at all, you'll find something to like here. If past Griffey games were hits, then this one is a grand slam homer!

© 1998 Nintendo/Rare

The video game world is about to receive a 128-megabit shock to its senses. Banjo-Kazooie from Nintendo is set to raise the bar on the N64.

RESISTANCE IS IMPOSSIBLE

When it releases on June 29th, Banjo-Kazooie will open the door to 3-D adventure like no game has done before. The only thing like it is Super Mario 64, but Banjo-Kazooie is a full generation ahead in graphic richness, and it will take most players three or four times longer to figure it all out. Finally complete after more than two years in development at Rare, Banjo-Kazooie turns out to be as powerful as a magic potion. Nine puzzling worlds wait to be explored, each containing ten jigsaw pieces and over a hundred other items. The goal for players is to collect jigsaws and Nuts to open up all the doors, to learn new moves, and to stomp and fly and swim where no bird or bear has ever stomped, flown or swam before. With ferociously fun puzzles, wonderfully rude characters, huge, stunning worlds to explore, and probably the best sound effects and musical score to date, Banjo-Kazooie is simply irresistible.

"THAT'S RIGHT, MY PRETTIES. LISTEN TO WORD BOY. COME INTO MY LAIR WITH THAT DUMB BEAR AND BIRD. RESISTANCE IS USELESS. HA-HA-HA!"

WHO ARE YOU CALLING LOUD-BEAKED?
I'M THE STAR OF THE GAME. BANJO IS JUST TRANSPORTATION. GET IT RIGHT, YOU HACK.

THE SAD TALE OF TOOTY

When Grunilda, the wicked witch of the ugliest kind, heard about pretty little Tooty, she practically popped a wart. Naturally, being a vile, cruel, and ultimately predictable video game villain, Grunilda kidnapped the young honey bear and hid her away in a puzzling lair where she intended to steal Tooty's beauty with a diabolical machine. Only then did Banjo, Tooty's sleepy, but courageous brother, wake up to discover that his sister was missing. With the help of his loud-beaked friend, Kazooie, Banjo set off to track down Tooty, defeat the greatest evil known to Rare programming, and make everything swell again. Since there are no innocents to protect, no narnas have been changed. Let's get on with it.

This sleepy honey bear may seem a bit slow, but he's a hero through and through.

THE CO-STARS

Kazooie may think that she's the star of the game, but it's really a team effort. Like every great acting team—Laurel and Hardy, Bogart and Bacall, Bullwinkle, and Rocky—the co-stars talents complement each other. Banjo and Kazooie have specialized moves, but they also have tandem moves in which they work together. During game play, you'll switch back and forth between the two as the situation dictates. If there's a tree to climb, Banjo takes the lead. If you want to run up a steep hillside, Kazooie will be your choice. As you learn the moves, it all starts feeling quite natural. Maybe one day we'll all carry around a freesty, Red Crested Breegull in our backpacks.

SUPPORTING CAST? WITHOUT ME, AND MY DEVIOUSNESS, THERE WOULDN'T BE ANY GAME AT ALL. I DEMAND TOP BILLING!

THE SUPPORTING CAST

The supporting characters in Banjo-Kazooie come in all shapes, sizes and degrees of disfigurement. Some of the critters do all they can to help our heroic pair. Bottles the mole pops up throughout the game to teach new moves and to bandy insults with Kazooie. On the other paw, many of the characters belong heart and soul to the evil witch. They're just hanging around, waiting for a tasty treat of bird and bear. And then there's Brenilda, Gruntilda's good little sister, who gives you mysterious clues about her sister's weird behavior. One thing that all of the characters share is that they come alive with wonderful animation and sound. The artists, designers, composers and writers at Rare stopped at nothing to bring these characters to life. They pop up at odd times with witty comments and cartoon trash talk. They squawk, bubble, grunt, moan and chuck. They even move with attitude. In short, they're unforgettable.

Mumbo

Mumbo the witch doctor commands powerful magic that can transform a bird and bear into marvellous forms, like a terrapin or a fish. He also plays a mean fiddle.

Conga

What if Rare game would be complete without a pair of senseless little Conga and his chimp friend? To win some Jigjaws, you'll have to defeat characters like Conga, and unlike bosses in many games, you may run into many of these bloated badies in a single area.

Captain Blubber

The old sea hippo is one of many-bit players who show up to present our heroes with puzzles or tasks.

Beggy

On the icy slopes of Freezeezy Peak, the warm-hearted Beggy needs a helping paw from his bear cousin, Barp.

Mr. Wile

Bubblegum Swamp is home to roving creeping and crawling things, but Mr. Wile's toothy smile conceals an inner crocodile.

Clunker

The huge reekase of Clunker's Covein earns his keep as Gruntilda's trash compactor. What he really wants, though, is just some fresh water and oxygen. Unlike most creatures of this size, Clunker isn't bad to the bone. Deep down inside, he has a heart of gold.

KAZOOIE DESERVES WHATEVER SHE GETS. THAT BIRD-BRAIN IS A PAIN. WHEN I TRY TO TEACH HER SOMETHING, SHE JUST RUFFLES HER FEATHERS—AND MINE, AS WELL.

A STUDY IN MOTION

The many moves in Banjo-Kazooie range from simple to complex, but you don't need to remember them all at once. You learn moves as you progress by talking to Bottles the mole. When a new move becomes essential for passing a stage, Bottles will be there to teach you how it's done. Some of the moves are for Banjo, while others are performed by Kazooie. To get anywhere in the Witch's Lair, you'll need to use them both. Below, we've demonstrated some of the 24 moves, but you'll have to read next month's review to see them all.

Banjo Punch
Banjo swings his mighty arms and swaggers forward to punch enemies or obstacles.

Kazooie Flight
Kazooie takes over on the flight pad, hauling Banjo along for a wild ride in the sky. Rad feathers keep Kazooie airborne for longer periods.

Forward Atteck Roll
Banjo bows low to the competitor with a neat somersault.

Beak Buster
While in the air, Kazooie dives bombs straight down to peck helpless foes or to activate ground switches.

Rat-a-tat Rap
When Banjo jumps, and pokes her beak at enemies, Kazooie pops out of her backpack.

Talon Trot
After flipping Banjo on to her back, Kazooie can race at high speed and scramble up steep slopes without slipping.

Bear & Bird Paddle
With Banjo kicking, your progress is slow but your control is tight. If Kazooie flaps her wings under water, you'll move much faster. On the surface, you'll cruise along using Banjo's bear paddle.

Egg Shots
From the front, Kazooie can fire out eggs like cannon shots. From the back, the eggs sort of plink out.

"I'LL HAVE YOU KNOW THAT SHOOTING EGGS TAKES CONCENTRATION AND AS MUCH EFFORT AS... WELL, WE WON'T GO INTO THAT. BUT NO BEAR OR HUMAN CAN DO IT. YOU JUST WATCH WHAT YOU WRITE."

"MUMBO LIKES TRANSFORMING BEAR AND BIRD. MUMBO WOULD TRANSFORM UGLY WITCH, TOO. BUT NO MAGIC IS THAT POWERFUL."

PRIZED POSSESSIONS

Once you learn how to get around, you'll have to learn what getting around gets you. The most important items in Banjo-Kazooie are the golden Jigsaw pieces and the golden Notes. By fitting Jigsaw pieces into the pictures, you'll complete the picture and unlock a door somewhere in the game world. Other items include eggs, feathers, Mumbo tokens, and special items like the Wading Boots. While some items are out in the open just asking to be found, many items have been hidden away or placed in difficult-to-reach locations. To win other jigsaw pieces, you'll have to fight a boss, figure out a puzzle, perform some astounding feat, or win a minigame. No previous adventure has had this much variety.

Notes activate and open Note Doors. You must collect the number of notes that appears above the door if you wish to enter. In every stage, you'll also find 100 notes scattered about.

The honeycombs come in two types. Collect six hollow honeycomb pieces to add one solid honeycomb to your life bar. Regular honeycombs fill up your life bar.

With each power flap, Kazooie gains altitude, but uses up one red feather.

Special items can be anything from the gold these are lost by Captain Blunder to the Waders that protect Kazooie from inflated water. They are most often used for short-term gains or to solve puzzles.

These special feathers form a shield that protects both bird and bear from attacks when in use.

Each world holds ten Jigsaw sets, and other Jigsaw sets can be found in the Witch's Lair. Since Jigsaw sets are the most important items in the game, you can bet that most of them are hard to collect. In most cases you'll have to solve puzzles, beat bosses, or perform extraordinary feats of endurance or skill to earn a Jigsaw.

Jigsaws are doorkeys, but they're also a sort of item. If you collect all five Jigsaws from an area, you'll get a doorkey.

Powerful magic resides in these silver skulls. Collect as many tokens as is indicated on the sign in Mumbo's hat, then give them to the witch doctor. In turn, Mumbo will transform our heroes into new forms.

"I HAVE MORE MAGIC IN MY NOSE HAIR THAN THAT QUACK WITCH DOCTOR HAS IN HIS ENTIRE HUT."

WHERE WITCHES DARE

All the characters, moves and items come together in the nine wonderful worlds of Banjo-Kazooie, not to mention Gruntilda's sprawling Lair. The game begins at Spiral Mountain where Banjo, Kazooie, Tooty and Bottles all live. High above the valley loom the greenish crags of the Witch's Lair, but in the glen there is sunshine and flowers. Here, before you enter the Lair, Bottles will teach you many of the basic moves and give you a chance to practice them. Once you feel ready to move on, you'll cross the high bridge into the maw of the mountain and begin your adventure. The Lair itself is a series of tunnels and chambers that worm into the mountain. There you will find many doors leading to the nine worlds, but at first they are locked or hidden away. Although Mumbo's Mountain will be your initial destination, your choices after that will be limited only by the number of Jewels and Notes that you collect. Now get set for a whirlwind tour of the early worlds of Banjo-Kazooie and a sneak peek at what lies ahead.

THE ROVING EYE

For those of you who played Mario 64, which is just about everyone who loves games, you know how important it is to be able to see things from different angles in a 3-D world. The programmers at Rare devised an excellent system for moving the camera perspective to different angles. The most useful camera control is active when you push the R Button. When you press it, the camera moves directly behind your characters and follows along. The left and right C Buttons rotate your view around the central characters while the bottom C Button zooms the view in and out. The top C Button gives you a first-person perspective, great for looking all around, but you can't move Banjo and Kazooie when you're using this perspective.

Keeping the camera behind your heroes can be the best way to see what's going on.

Sometimes it's useful to have a side-angle view when jumping.

Check out your surroundings by using the first-person camera option.

"IT'S ABOUT TIME YOU GOT IT RIGHT. IT DOES TAKE SKILL TO SHOOT EGGS AND DEFEAT AN APE THE SIZE OF A BUILDING. THAT'S WHY I'M A STAR."

"UH-HUH, AND IF YOU GET SLEEPY LIKE ME, YOU CAN SAVE YOUR GAME IN ONE OF THREE SLOTS. AFTER THE MONEY, I'D SAY THAT'S THE BEST PART OF THE GAME."

MUMBO'S MOUNTAIN

One jigsaw piece will gain you entrance into this alpine wonderland where Mumbo lives amidst some pretty strange neighbors. It is a small world that's not overly dangerous—a good place to practice your new skills and learn a few more from Bottles. The highlights include a fight with Conga the big ape at the top of an orange tree, your meeting with Mumbo, and your trip into the territo hill after Mumbo transforms you.

Conga hangs at angles from the top of the tree. This is where Kazebe learns to shoot her eggs, which takes great skill and cunning on her part.

The pond contains secret treasures, so you'll want to take a dip.

TREASURE TROVE COVE

Treasure Trove Cove is the best place to go next because it's there that you'll learn how to fly. Not only does the action pick up on the desert island, the puzzles start turning into real brain-burners. Most of the jigsaws are hidden away and require considerable effort by both bear and hand to retrieve. The dangers are many.

Like the giant shark in the water, snapping treasure chests, the crabs on the beach, the Hermit Crab, and spiny fish. Ah, but the views are tremendous. You can climb the cliffs and look out over the sea. On the top of a mountain sits a lighthouse. In a cove rests a beached pirate ship. Every palm is crowned with items and every cove holds a mystery. What a great place for a vacation.

Woe! The crab has an eye up for trouble.

The Jejo on shore looks scared, and well he should be, with the giant shark circling nearby.

Draining this mysterious room is even more puzzling than the puzzle on the floor of the chamber.

"WAY, YOU BLITHERING LANDLUBBER, 'TIS NO PLACE FOR A WAG-TION. I'VE GOT NO GOLD SINCE I WRECKED ON THIS CONFOUNDED SHORE. AND I CAN'T EVEN ENJOY THE WATER, CAUSE I CAN'T SWIM."

"IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU AGAIN. AFTER SINGLE-HANDEDLY DEFEATING THE WIZPIG, I DECIDED TO COME HERE AND START A CHOIR."

ELSEWHERE IN THE LAIR

Mambo's Mountain and Treasure Trove Cove are just the beginning. The action really starts picking up when you move on to Clankie's Cavern and Bubbleloop Swamp. We leave you with some tantalizing images of the rest of Banjo and Kazooie's journey as they cross burning deserts, climb frozen mountains, explore Clock Clock Wood, enter a mansion full of monsters and set sail on the bad ship HMS Gruntilda. Bon voyage!

Freezezy Mountain reminds Banjo of winter and sleep, but there's no time to rest.

The sphynx and the pyramids hold many secrets.

Look for Banjo's and Kazooie's special pieces for that class that you'll use at the conclusion of the game.

It takes a lot of pluck for a bird to brave these rotating knives.

THE DREAM LIVES

When Banjo-Kazooie first went into development at Rare, it was known only by the codename of "Dream." That dream is now reality, and the reality will be in your town next month, waiting to go home with you. We'll begin our flap-by-flap coverage in the June issue of Nintendo Power. Until then, we recommend getting lots of sleep, because you won't be getting many Zs when Banjo and Kazooie come home.

"YUP, THAT SOUNDS LIKE A GREAT IDEA. LET'S ALL GET SOME SLEEP. WAKE ME UP JUNE 29TH AND WE'LL GO ON AN ADVENTURE."

FORSAKEN 64™

Forsaken™ & © 1995 Acclaim Entertainment, Inc.

The world's riches are yours for the taking in Acclaim's stomach-churning Forsaken 64. All you have to do is get past the trigger-happy security robots.

EARTH IS CONDEMNED

In 2113 the human race blew itself into smithereens while experimenting with subatomic manipulation. Now the galactic theocracy has voted earth condemned, and anything on the planet that can be salvaged is up for grabs. As rogues and opportunists from all corners of the galaxy fly in on their anti-grav pincycles, only one thing stands between them and untold riches: the earth's automated robot defense network. The armed mechanoids won't give up without a fight.

REAL TIME. REAL SPACE. REAL COOL.

Welcome to the world of Forsaken. You are a space rogue out to make a buck in one of the deadliest sectors in the universe. Forsaken may look like another Doom clone, but it offers an impressive balance of puzzles and flight-sim style dogfights. Play control is futuristic and responsive. Tap the accelerator and the walls blur as your bike surges forward in a real-time, real-space, 3-D environment. Nudge the control stick and instantly roll your pincycle into a dizzying spin, but don't stop to figure out which way is up or down—easy targets are roadkill on this dark planet.

As you twist and turn through Forsaken's levels, the walls and corridors flip all around you. Navigating through the gyrating passages is confusing. Retreating your roots while bikes spin down can make you think you're in uncolored territory. Although it's tough to keep your bearings while you're dodging laser beams, each area is more usually has a different color. Remember the wall colors as you explore.

Forsaken is a gamer's game—it doesn't have a tutorial or a training mode. The quickest way to learn is to hop on your bike and get vaporized. After a few humbling minutes and a dozen fiery crashes, you'll quickly learn that flight is often better than a fight, and the best battles are the ones in which the enemies never see what hit them. The deadliest weapon in this game isn't a massive beam weapon or a super-smart missile—it's the gray matter inside your skull.

Marky pools of water are your only clue to which way is up inside a maze. Pincycles are designed to travel through all conditions lacking water. Slip beneath the surface and explore the depths, but keep an eye out for dark shadows. The mechanical enemies in the game aren't afraid to get their mesochips wet.

SCUM OF THE UNIVERSE

The salvage operation on earth is an open invitation to looters throughout the universe, including these slimy opportunists.

Use these rogues for single and multiplayer action, but don't be surprised if you find a hidden character or two.

FOETOO

NIM SOO SIN

self into lots of big trouble. What you need is a solid game plan to get you out of it. When you're tired of being blown to bits, check out our favorite single-player strategies.

COLLECT BETTER WEAPONS

Nearly everything and everyone has a bigger weapon than you do at the start of a mission. Your top priority should be to locate and capture any weapons before the enemy finds you.

Your standard MUG rockets and Pulse bolts won't dish out damage to many foes. Start looking around for weapons as soon as you start the game. Finding Power Pods and Solaris missiles should be a high priority for starting out in single-player mode.

FIRE ON THE RUN

There's nothing like more than trading the CPU defenses like more than trading stationary targets. There are often countless computer-controlled enemies and only one of you. Don't be a sitting duck—take your best shot, then quickly move to a new location so you don't take a hit.

CRUSH THE LITTLE GUYS

The tiny defense robots you find throughout most mazes are so easy to defeat that you might be tempted to ignore them. The truth is that the little guys often pack a big wallop that can quickly demolish your defenses. Treat every enemy with the same unforbearing respect—and hit them before they hit you.

REGENERATING ENEMIES

In later stages you'll encounter areas stocked with regenerating enemies. As soon as you destroy one or two, another will appear to take the place of its fallen robotic comrade. Put some space between you and the robots, and try taking them out from a distance before they can close to return fire.

PUZZLES, PERILS AND PLUTONIUM

While the earth has been stripped of all life, the Mechanoid Defense Force (MDF), a cooperative group of robotic sentries, still patrols the underground complexes beneath the planet surface. Single-player mode isn't just about blasting everything in sight. Your brain is the most deadly weapon in your arsenal—use it to solve these tricks and traps.

TIMERS AND LOCKS

Many doors in the game are locked, especially the ones leading to rooms filled with power-ups and enemies. Some portals can be unlocked by a remote switch or timer. Hit the switch with your pionsycle or a blast from your weapons, then retrace your route to any of the locked doors you encountered earlier in the level. If you hit a timer, be sure to quickly search for the doors before time expires.

Hit the remote switch to start the timer, then quickly search the rest of the level before the door can close.

CATCH THE ORB

The Golden Orb of Matter is one of the most prized MDF treasures. If you could steal it, the theft might create aggression big enough for a rider to sneak past the Babalas defenses. Four bounty hunters share your plan, so it's a free-for-all race to get to the orb. While it's tempting to chase after rivals, you'll live longer if you take your time and blast anyone stupid enough to cross your path.

STABILIZERS

Looters beware: the Toichok Reactor is about to melt down, destroying anything that could be salvaged. The only way to avert disaster is to locate five Stabilizer Crystals and place them inside the atomic core. It's too bad the now-deceased physicist didn't bother to deactivate the reactor's defense droids.

PROTECT THE DRONE

A slow-moving carrier drone is your only ticket out of this wretched bunker. Scout ahead of the drone and dispatch the armed base security system, then locate all the railway switches to guide the drone through the maze. The bunker is honey-combed with hidden passages and rooms, so don't be surprised if enemies keep coming back to ambush the carrier long after you'd thought you neutralized every enemy.

DEFEND YOUR REACTOR

In an effort to stop the looting once and for all, the MDF has launched a counter-offensive on your base. To survive, you must defend the four reactor cores that power your base while drawing the enemies' fire. This mission is one of the toughest in the game, since the real trick is to shoot down the attackers while making sure that your reactor cores don't get hit in the fury of the crossfire.

FOUR VOLATILE PIECES

Inside a munitions plant are four pieces of the infamous Black-Hole Gun. Your mission is to locate and capture all four pieces. Three of the pieces are already in the hands of other bounty hunters, but the fourth piece is held by the mysterious Aqua-Force-1. Besides dealing with rivals, you'll have to dodge the munitions plant's roving tanks and automated cannons. Your best chance for survival is to proceed slowly, but keep moving to avoid being an easy target. The trick to locating the tanks and cannons is to fire and move so the enemy can't lock your ploncycle in its sights.

Beat the munitions plant tanks by alternating between firing and moving until the enemy falls apart.

MUCKING AROUND BENEATH PARIS

The Parisian sewer system is a conduit for the mechanized armies controlling the city ruins. You'll have barely enough time to destroy all the enemies, so don't waste seconds collecting all the countless power-ups hidden in the shadows. Keep a Titan missile ready so you can quickly dispatch the groups of deoids waiting to ambush you. Some robots are armed with Graygon Missiles, so dodge their fire to avoid the force field traps.

MULTIPLAYER MAYHEM

Forsaken's multiplayer mode is packed with options and variety. The clarity of the game's graphics and play control rivals the quality found in GoldenEye 007's outstanding multiplayer mode, but Forsaken features an option for adding CPU riders into the fray. Unlike the mechanized droves in the single-player game, these computer-controlled riders are exceptionally smart and know when to fight and flee, enhancing the game's challenge and replay value.

MAX FRAGS

Just in case you've been working on your poneycycle in a remote corner of the galaxy, a "frag" is a kill tally—and your frag total is the number of times you've defeated other players in a match. As the name suggests, the winner of the mode is the gamer with the most kills. Before starting a Max Frags match, you and your rivals will have to agree on a Frag Limit. Frag Limits can range from five to fifty. The first player to reach the Frag Limit wins the game. It's a good idea to set up your games with a low Frag Limit number, unless you've stocked up on food and beverages and you're ready to play all day.

LAST MAN

Last Man mode is an elimination contest that ends when only one rider is still flying around the arena. Players start with from three to ten lives. Depending on the negotiating skills and creativity of the gamers or the controllers, Last Man can be a match involving shrewd and fragile alliances or a quick and chaotic anarchy with everyone blasting anything and everything that moves. The action gets intense when two or three inexperienced gamers agree to gang up to take out a Forsaken veteran. Just remember: that your informal and impromptu pact won't last forever in Last Man—only one player can win, so sooner or later, you'll have to turn on your allies before they betray you.

BOMB TAG

Only one player gets a weapon in Bomb Tag, but if you don't get rid of it before the timer counts down to zero, you'll end up blown to smithereens. The player who carries the bomb for the shortest amount of time wins the match. One trick to avoiding the bomb is to unload it and quickly find a place to hide. Remember to turn your craft into a wall or dark corner so other players will have a tough time determining where you're hiding if they're trying to peek at your screen.

BATTLE MODE

Yeah, yeah, we know Battle Mode is a one-player game, but it plays exactly like a multiplayer match. Instead of a split screen view, you'll have a full view of the action against the CPU-controlled bounty hunters. Battle Mode has three difficulty levels and uses both the single-player and multiplayer levels and armas. You have three lives to use to make it through the eight stages.

Ultra-challenging Battle Mode is a single player game, but you play it just like any other multiplayer match.

IT'S FAR FROM OVER

While it's a blast to bring our readers the breaking news on games in development, Forsaken was still under construction when we shipped this article off to the printers. There's a pretty good chance that the programmers at Probe will revise a few game features before Forsaken reaches down on store shelves. We're totally transfixed by the game's stunning graphics, pounding soundtrack and challenging game play, so it's a sure bet that we'll still be playing it next month. But we won't forsake you. Look for more survival strategies and a possible game change or two in the June issue.

FIFA 98

ROAD TO THE WORLD CUP

World Cup Wrap-Up

We'll kick off this month's installment of Classified Info with the rest of the codes for FIFA Road to the World Cup '98. As with last month's codes, all of these cheats are activated by renaming the first player of a specific team. Select the Customize Squad option and then the Player Edit option. Select the appropriate team and then press Down to highlight the first player's name. Press A to select that player. Once you've changed his name (use all capital letters), press Start twice and then 8 to return to the main menu.

Cine Celebration

Name the first player of the Japan team (Zona 3-AFC conference) HORIE. Enter Road to World Cup mode. On the Round Select screen, press Z, left C and top C simultaneously to access a cinema screen menu.

Player Points

To give yourself unlimited skill points in the Player Edit mode, change the name of the first player on the Yugoslavia team (USA conference) to DAVE.

Round Select

Change the name of the first player on the Japan team to YUJI. You'll then be able to skip to any round in the Road to World Cup mode.

GOLDENEYE 007

Fresh Faces

As you probably know, completing GoldenEye 007 on Agent mode will enable a number of extra characters in Multiplayer mode. This code will unlock all those characters plus 31 more, for a total of 64 selectable characters!

The code must be entered on the Character Select screen in Multiplayer mode. It has ten separate steps, and you must release all buttons between each step. Use the Control Pad, not the Control Stick, to enter the directional commands. Luckily, you won't have to complete the game to get the code to work. Incidentally, most of these characters are actually modeled after Rare employees, including some of the kitchen staff!

Step	Hold	Press
2	L	Top C
4	L	Right
5	R	Down
7	L	Top C
8	L and R	Right
9	L and R	Bottom C
10	L	Down

Some of the characters have the same faces as other characters, though their costumes differ.

Amazingly it's Resiko, the killer cleaning lady! Real Ran like the wind!

Fighter's Destiny

Play As Robert the Practice Dummy

Our code breakers have figured out how to enable the secret characters in Fighter's Destiny, but there's a catch: the codes will work only if the Master gives them to you! Every time you complete a one-player game, the Master will give you a special move. He may also give you a code to unlock a secret character, but this is a random event. We played the game until the Master told us how to unlock Robert; play the Record Attack game on Fastest mode and defeat all opponents in one minute or less.

Plying through the game will be the only way to unlock all the secret characters.

If you prove your worth, the Master may eventually treat you with his secrets.

NAGANO WINTER OLYMPICS '98

Hermann's Headstond

We named this trick in honor of Hermann Maier, the Austrian Olympian who wiped out spectacularly in the Downhill, only to go on to a Gold Medal in Super GI in the Freestyle Aerial event, don't touch any buttons until you take off, then press B repeatedly until you land. Yowza!

If your timing is right, you'll land and then sit the rest of the way on your head.

You won't get any points for this trick, but it's fun to watch, especially in Replay!

NFL CLUB 98

Stop the Madness

OK, now we're beginning to be just a little disturbed. Every time we think we've reached the bottom of the QB Club barrel, a few new codes float to the surface. What does Midway think this game is—Mortal Kombat?! At any rate, you know the drill: Enter all codes on the Cheat menu, and you'll hear a tone if you enter a code correctly. Most codes will work together, and there's no limit to the number of codes you can activate. Got that? Now if you'll excuse us, we're going to play QB one more time, just in case...

Big Twisters

Type in BGTWSTRS on the Cheat menu to make the ball carrier spin continuously. You'll better watch out for the tackle!

Super Big Arms

To max out your players' arm strength, enter SP1000MS on the Cheat menu. Now let's try that stiff arm move one more time!

Super Tackle

This code will give the advantage to the tackling player and make downing an opponent much easier. To activate the code, enter SP10PRTDL on the Cheat menu.

Mine Field Mode

To enter the field with mines, enter MMFLDMO on the Cheat menu. Oh, you'll make two yards, all right—flying through the air!

WCW vs. nWo -WORLD TOUR-

Special Move Swipe

Though we're usually pretty methodical when we search for codes, sometimes we discover them just by accident. We were playing WCW vs. NWO for fun when we stumbled across this trick. To use one of your opponent's signature moves against him, build up your power meter until it says, "Special." Now get your opponent into a strong grapple and then press A and B simultaneously. It's that simple!

Use this trick to turn the tables on your foe.

Soa? Just mashing buttons can be useful sometimes!

TETRIS ATTACK

Faster Time Trial

Even though we knew about this code when Tetris Attack was released, it somehow got lost in the shuffle, and we failed to print it. Several observant readers prodded us about this code recently, so here it is: turn on your deck, wait for Yoshi to say, "Nintendo," then press B, A, L and L. One-player Time Trial games will now run faster than usual.

You'll hear a beep if the code is entered correctly.

There won't be very much of a difference above level 50.

JAMES BOND 007

Card Game Passwords

If you were James Bond, people would always be shooting at you. On the other hand, you'd get to attend a lot of swanky parties at exclusive casinos. We can't turn you into 007, but these passwords will enable you to play the bonus card games at any time. Start a game and select an empty save file. Enter B|A|C|K as your name to play blackjack, B|A|C|C|R for baccarat or R|E|D|O|G for red dog. Your deal, Mr. Bond...

Select an empty save file and enter the appropriate name.

My word, 007! You'll break the bank for sure!

Code Hunter Corner

Head Case

Last month's Code Hunter Corner featured a little April Fools' joke, but in reality, the "Case of the Big Head" wasn't entirely fictional. Paul Shinoda, our head code hunter, underwent jaw surgery in December. With his face swollen like a big balloon, he graciously volunteered to be the subject of our April Fools' feature. Thanks, Paul!

This post-operation photo of Paul was doctored a bit, but not much!

Don't worry his face didn't stay that way. He's now well on his way to recovery.

FINAL FANTASY LEGEND II

Sound Test

The Final Fantasy titles for the Game Boy were truly legendary, and all three (FF Adventure, FF Legend and FF Legend II) are being rereleased. To access a Sound Test in FF Legend II, hold Select, B and Start on the Title screen.

Hold Select, B and Start on the Title screen to activate the Sound Test.

Press Left or Right to scroll through the musical selections and press A to play.

WARIO LAND II

Instant Reset

Here's a quick code for Wario's latest Game Boy adventure: to reset your game, press Select, Start, A and B simultaneously. You can use this code at any time.

If things look dire, you can reset your game to save Wario from disaster.

You'll have to start over from your last save point, but you won't lose coins or items.

DUKE NUKEM 64

Dancing Duke

We'll close this month's column with three fun tricks for The Duke. The first two tricks, Little Duke and Big Duke, were sent to us via our web site. The third, Dancing Duke, we stumbled upon while testing the first two tricks. You must have the Invincibility cheat to do these tricks.

To create a Little Duke, start a Cooperative or a Demomatch game with the Invincibility off. Have one Duke shoot the other with the Shrinker. Go to the Cheat menu and turn the Invincibility on and then off. Now return to your game. Presto! Little Duke will remain small for the rest of the game or until he gets stepped on. Unfortunately, Little Duke won't be able to carry or fire weapons.

To create a Big Duke, hit the other player with the Expander. Let him grow, but pause your game before he explodes. Turn the Invincibility on and then off. Return to your game. Big Duke will function normally, but he'll also be a very easy target!

If you're in a dancing mood, shoot one of the Dukes with the Expander and then pause the game before he explodes. Access the Cheat menu and turn the Invincibility option on. Return to your game. Access the Cheat menu again and turn Invincibility off. Now Duke's "death" animation will repeat over and over, making it look like he's doing a twisted version of the hokey-pokey!

These tricks work in both the Cooperative and Demomatch modes.

Dancing Duke can carry and fire weapons, even while he jumps for your level!

IGGY'S reckin' balls

Acclaim takes racing to the next level and above by expanding the genre vertically. With Iggy, you'll have a ball, but neverending dangers will make your trip a tough one. At least with our roundup of shortcuts and tricks, you'll stay on track and on the ball.

FOLLOW THE BOUNCING BALL

In the Cho-Domo kingdom, floating roller-coaster ramps and stacks of spinning tracks form towering roadways that climb to the heavens. An ancient civilization erected the sacred towers, but their purpose, like the sky-scraping towers themselves, remains up in the air. To Iggy, a roly-poly wad of reptile, the answer is clear: The towers are mere playgrounds for him and his Reckin' Ball pals to race through, then destroy. That is, if the towers' inhabitants don't stop them. But then again, we know the shortcuts around them.

HIGH ROLLERS

The game features ten worlds, and hidden in each one (with the exception of the first world) is a secret racer, like the ninja. While the developers at Iguana revealed to us that there is barely any difference between the characters' speed or grappling abilities, one look at these eight main racers will show that they're nonetheless a diverse and well-rounded crew.

IGGY

It's Iggy who has arranged the races to determine who is worthy of destroying the towers. Hence, he's the game's ace.

Q-TEE

Pink and perky, Q-tee is one of the few female Reckin' Balls. She's not Iggy's girlfriend, but a hidden character is.

CHATTER

From Iceland comes Chatter, who is all snakes, especially when he grasps an opponent with his whip-like tongue.

ANANDA

When controlled by the CPU, ponytailed Ananda tends to be very ruthless, aggressive and eager to pick a fight.

ROB-ERT

Russia's round mechs robot doesn't bounce along the tracks like other racers. Instead, mechanical Rob-ert hovers.

MARIE

If anyone wants to scare up a victory against Iggy, it's Marie, a pumpkin head who'll use tricks and treats to win.

CHARLIE

Hi Charlie's no square. This smoothy grapples with his gold chain, and he rounds out the friendlier bunch of racers.

SONNY

It may be his name, but it's definitely not his disposition. Sonny is a hot-headed ball of fire who likes to fight.

BALL BEARINGS

To run circles around the other Reckin' Balls, you'll need to juggle the game's three main maneuvers: jumping, grappling and rolling. Each move is just a button-press away, but your key to success is knowing when and where to do it. The game offers four preset Controller configurations, but all our Controller references will be based on the default setup.

HANG TIME

Tap the A Button to make your ball jump. For more hang time, hold down the A Button to make your ball jump that briefly how, giving you enough time to grapple on to something.

HOLDING ON

Got familiar with how fast and far your ball's grappling-lee can extend? The B Button will lash out the grapple, and the Control Stick will direct where the arm reaches.

TURBO BOOST

In each race, you'll have four chances to propel your ball with a Turbo Boost bar. The red-yellow jaw chart in the lower left of your screen shows how many bars to you have.

ROCK 'N' ROLL

Once you've mastered the game's three basic moves, you'll be able to round out your techniques with a few racing tricks that will keep your ball rolling. In the diagrams below, the red ball depicts your opponent, who's a little clueless and isn't taking our advice. The blue ball, on the other hand, shows what you should be doing when you're informed and on the ball.

GRAPPLINE AIR

To climb quickly, grapple lifelines when you've reached your jump's peak height. As soon as you pull up to the next level, your ball will hang in midair for a split second. Before your ball lands, quickly jump and grapple to take advantage of your extra altitude.

HOP TO IT

Rolling down steep slopes may be a fast ride, but it's not always the quickest route. By hopping off the hillside, you may be able to grapple on to a higher platform. Plus, if there turns out to be nothing to grab on to, you'll land back on track with no time lost.

HELPING HANDS

Getting attacked by another racer can sometimes work in your favor. If an enemy grapples and throws your ball, your foe may inadvertently hurl you into the air. As you fall through the air, grapple to the nearest platform—it may get you closer to the finish.

A QUICK DIP

If a course begins with stacked tracks that you must climb, start your race by dropping into the water beneath your track. While crossing the A Gate, push the Control Stick down. Once you splash down, your ball will bounce up a few stories to give you a jump start.

SPHERES OF INFLUENCE

Reach for the stars. You'll find them either along the tracks or if you pummel other racers and slam them into the ground. By grappling or running over a yellow star, you'll randomly receive one of six main types of power-up. The Z Button will activate it, and, with the exception of Invincibility and Projectiles, power-ups will whimmy every one of your opponents.

If you're guarding a Bubble Trap, grapple when it bursts. The bubble can float you off the track, but you may be able to reach a higher area, too.

By using Slow-Mo, you'll be able to keep or take the lead. The power-up will slow down other racers while leaving your pace unaffected.

A Blue Projectile will chase along one stretch of track until it hits something, while Red and Yellow Projectiles will seek out specific racers.

To be unstoppable, reach for a star. The Invincibility power-up will temporarily protect you from attacks, as well as increase your speed.

An enemy's Freeze Blast will trap you in an ice cube, but you won't be frozen stiff. To keep things rolling, hit the Z Button to turbo-boost.

If an opponent activates a Reverse Controls, your ball will turn red and respond with the movement opposite to your Controller command.

DOWNTOWN

In Arcade Mode, you'll race and battle against three CPU-controlled balls through the Championship Circuit's ten worlds. Downtown is the first world, and its tangle of roads will pave the way for the more elaborate towers to come. Downtown's basic setup makes for ideal training grounds, and its stacks of streets will help polish your jump-and-grapple skills.

WARP SPEED

As you climb up the stacks of circular roads, roll down the blue conveyor belt instead of grappling higher. At the end of the belt is a magic warp that will teleport you past an entire stack of roads.

DROP TO THE TOP

Inch ahead of the power-up at the end of the first conveyor belt, then drop to the track below. Follow the road to the awped jumper. If you roll into it, you'll launch yourself close to the finish line.

DOWN ON THE UPSIDE

You'll bounce by a few jumpers that are flanked by arrows. Always approach the jumpers from the side with the downarrow by it; if you approach the up-arrow side, your trip to the top will be longer.

tower

BLOW UP

Using fans will usually save you time. Jump into the fans' gust, but keep the Control Stick still so that the draft will carry you straight up. Ride the windmill; you can grapple on to the red conveyor belt.

CANDY LANE

If you bounce out of Downtown's ten courses with the highest average score, you'll unlock the next four worlds. The first is Candy Lane, where all is not sweet. Its broken and unconnected streets are in need of more bridgework than any track-or-treaters who'd try to eat the peppermint-coated highways. Even less appetizing is the increased presence of Cho-Dama enemies.

THE AIR UP THERE

If you park your ball on top of the blower, your racer will float through the upper platform's gap. If you don't catch enough air the first time the blower pulls you upward, wait for its second wind to fly you higher.

OVER THE HILL

You can skip the blower in Tower 2 by taking a more difficult route. Rather than diving down the course's second stage, wait for the oscillating platform. When it slides your way, leap the archway and grapple.

BOUNCING BACK

If you tuck-a-phil, you'll slip across a stretch of platform smothered with green toxic slime that will slow you down. Swimmer instead, back into the Side Bouncer, then jump and grapple once you reach the hilltop.

SPIN CYCLE

Spring beneath the starting line to a circular track that has an upward jumper. To safely land on the lower track, head left or right from your starting point. As soon as you reach a red arrow, drop down.

THE DEEP

ALL POINTS BULLETIN

Grapple up the platform that floats near the bottom of the red conveyor belt. On the top platform sits a magic warp accompanied by an arrow that alternately points up and down. Enter the warp when the arrow points up.

POP FLY

Rather than hopping into the fan, pop onto the platform below and launch yourself from the jumpers. The fan will lift you a few stories only, while the jumper will blast you to the level just below the finish.

AIR BALL

After warping, you'll materialize on a U-shaped track. One end of the track features a jumper, while the other end features a blower. Enter the blower; float as high as the air will take you, then glide right.

PROP HOP

On the first stretch, the platform spins like a stack of horizontal propellers. To avoid waiting for the platform above to spin within reach, toss the Sparkies; they grapple through the center (the axis) of each track.

SOFT SUN BAY

FANFARE

When you reach the top of the fans, leap over them while pushing your Control Stick diagonally up. If you catch enough air, you'll be able to propel yourself up to the third platform that floats overhead.

PINBALL WIZARDRY

On the last leg of the course, your Recliner Ball will become a pinball as it bounces from jumper to jumper. By keeping your Control Stick still as the jumpers bag you around, you'll automatically land on each jumper.

THE VANISHING

When you reach the tower of disappearing tracks, move sideways as you grapple your way up. The tower is visible at certain angles, so keep your view of it rotating so you can catch frequent glimpses of the tracks.

HOP, STOP AND DROP

After locking on to the rotating circular platform, stay in place. If you stay where you boarded the platform, you'll be able to drop directly onto the next racing strip when your platform swings above it.

FASTBALLS

In addition to racing the three CPU racers in Arcade Mode, you can speed through Time Trial and Vs. Mode. Up to four people can simultaneously race in Vs. Mode, a circuit competition that features no CPU racers. In Time Trial, you're on your own, racing solo through a single lap to set a record time. Since no rival racers appear in Time Trial, it's the safest environment for exploring the tracks. But even if you know the courses, it'll be a whole new ball game once the other racers show up in Arcade Mode.

Race against the clock in Time Trial to test your rolling and grappling reflexes, or go head-to-head against friends in Versus Mode.

GLOBE-TROTTERS

Iggy's Reckin' Balls rolls out 100 courses, so you're bound to have a few dozen favorites. In Mix-Up Mode, you can single out those favorites and mix them together in a personalized racing circuit. Once you've assigned a track to all ten open slots in Mix-Up Mode's racing schedule, you can begin the wreckin' and racin' for the gold medal. Like Arcade Mode, your customized world will be worth a maximum of 100 points, with every gold medal finish earning ten points, silver earning five, and bronze earning two.

In Mix-Up, you can create a racing circuit using any of the 100 towers. Since the circuit is ten races long, you can represent each ward.

BALLROOM BLITZ

In Battle Mode, you can light up to three other balls, CPU- or human-controlled, in a battle royal. In addition to using power-ups, "grappler-to-grappler" combat will bolster your offense. When a racer rolls within reach, hit the B Button and you'll grab them; slam your opponent. For the Advanced Grapple-Slam, toggle the Control Stick left and right once someone's in your clutches. If you perform the maximum of four slams in a row, you'll win a power-up. To execute the devastating 360° Spin-Grapple, hit the B Button to grab, push the Control Stick up, then move the Stick in a full circle.

Battle Mode allows you to pit your Reckin' Ball against any combination of two, three or four CPU- and human-driven balls. Put the fear into other spheres by catching them with a power-up trap and then tossing them into the acid below.

FULL CIRCLE

Secrets still abound and bounce in IRB, including the world of Funkville and the hidden Elvis impersonator. And even after the credits have rolled (and you've aced every world, the game will unveil one last surprise: Iggy's Challenge, where you just might finally win access to using Iggy's girlfriend, Val.

HIDDEN LEVELS UNVEILED

We hope you can be trusted, soldier, because we're about to let you in on some of Quake 64's best kept secrets! Midway has included four hidden levels in this game, and we'll tell you everything you need to know to pull through them, like a trooper! And as if that weren't enough reason to keep reading, we'll also spill the beans on your final battle!

ZIGGURAT VERTIGO

This is probably the "scariest" stage because of its incredibly low gravity. In one of our delicious and unusual levels, here we're talking levitation! Both you and your ammo will be able to go higher—and farther than you ever could before!

1 Bonus Baptism

To finish the level with a quick bonus, grab the Pentagram of Protection in front of the Ziggurat and run into the lava pool off to its right. Sink down into the lava, turn right, and swim through the archway. Now just pop out of the pool, grab the Quad Damage, and head through the Slippate.

5 Close Quarters

The secret hallway in the Ziggurat leads to a two-tiered room where a couple of Ogres are lying in wait. It's a rather cramped space, so rather than running into the room with your gun blazing, use bank-shot grenades to beat the Ogre lurking off to the left and a couple of rockets to topple the one that's up and to the right. Once they're neutralized, hit the switch on the second tier to activate some elevators.

2 Ledge Launcher

There's an active elevator to the left of where you started the stage, but before you get a lift, jump up on all the ledges in this lower area and launch an attack on all the buddies you can see above. Remember that almost all of your weapons will have an extra long range in this level!

6 Handy Beam

In the final area outside the Ziggurat, leap up the ledges and dabble any Ogres you encounter. When you can't go any higher without an elevator's help, work your way over to the ledge on the right side of the room. Grab the Pentagram of Protection on this shadowy perch and quickly fall to the floor. Now take the closest lift up and prepare to defeat the Shambler that lurks in the highest reaches of the room.

3 Pocket Rockets

Rise to the lift to the upper area and take out any Ogres and Scrags that you come across. Now before you head up any farther, look around this floor for nail crates and the all-important Rocket Launcher.

4 Habbig Halls

This level's last secret area is almost impossible to miss. After you get past the Gold Key door and beat the three Ogres, explore the small hallway just past the room with the Slippate. Shoot the false wall you'll see on the right, enter the secret area, collect the nail crates inside, then just stroll through the Slippate to exit the stage!

4 Fall Back

At the very top of the hall you'll spy a Megacath and a big button. Trip the switch, carefully fall back down to the first floor (making sure that you don't land in lava), and go inside the now-open Ziggurat.

THE UNDEREARTH

It's a dark, dank, and claustrophobic environment, making you think that you're headed through a maze with only one way out. But there's a good end. Pay attention to the first tip so you can avoid a nasty surprise or a trap that leads to your deception to wear an outfit.

1 Finish First

The door near the starting point leads right to the exit, but you won't be able to leave until you've made your way through the rest of the level. Head in there anyway to make your final escape for easier. Next, find the opening in the moat to begin your assault on the bulk of this stage.

2 A Quick Quad

Once you've surfaced from the moat and defeated the three Ogres and a Fiend, explore the small hall until you find a block that's slightly askew. You can bump it to raise the bars in front of a nearby Quad Damage, but we suggest you save this bonus until after you've captured the Gold Key.

3 Fiends Follow

Nabbing the Megahealth will release two Fiends behind the wall on the right. Grab the power-up and quickly dive into the toxic pool on the left. You won't sustain much damage, but the Fiends usually follow and sink into the depths.

4 Big Blue Line

Just before you find the Gold Key, you'll come to a room with a blue line zigzagging across the floor. Don't step on it or you'll be struck by darts.

5 Toxic Treats

Just beyond the Gold Key door is a room with a bridge positioned over a toxic pool. Beneath the start of the bridge is a room with a circuit. Nab it and swim to the armor beneath the far end of the bridge. Now push the button by the first room and use the stairs behind you to cut the pool.

6 Switch Stations

This room contains a spinning turnstile that will nail any soldier who doesn't proceed with caution. To avoid being strafed with spikes, run around the room counterclockwise, bumping the four buttons on the walls as you pass by. Once you've pressed all of the buttons, some bars will rise, allowing you access to the next passage. Be prepared to slay the Ogre who is standing on the other side.

7 Nailed Knights

Soon after the Ogre you'll find a weakened passage that is guarded by a Fiend. Defeat him and use bank-shot grenades to lure out the two Knights who are hiding in the hallway. Switch to a Nailgun when they come out to play.

8 Fight or Flight?

If you followed the first tip for this level, you will have already defeated all the foes who were protecting the exit. If you didn't, you can either try to beat them now or just dash as fast as you can through the final door.

THE HAUNTED HAIRIES

With no enemies here, you'll pick from midlevel traps, this short-but-sweet level is remarkably easy. Live, though you won't have to worry about getting lost, so fear not that this stage's switch rooms are practically overflowing with powerful foes.

1 Two Short Stories

See yourself through most of this level's first two floors, but slow up after you've faced your first Evil. Then, the creature, creep forward until you can see around the next corner and blast any Evil in a spot with rockets. Now round the corner and turn the Ogres and bring them out. Hit the button and run to the Sliggate that's in the next room.

2 Live by the Launcher

Once you've got on the next step, go left until you see a room with a short bridge above. Although it's hard to spot, there's a small pit in the floor that holds a Fiend. Grenade him before going any farther. Next, rocket the Ogres that are up by the bridge, then take the lift up, hit the button, and fry the Zombies who'll emerge from the floor.

3 A Rattle for Bonuses

After you get across the bridge, you'll come to a room that's ugly with Ogres. Although you can bypass most of them by leaping into the lava and finding the path to the next room, you'll get a nasty burn while passing up a bunch of bonuses. Instead of fleeing, try wiping the Ogres out from the relative safety of the doorway. Once that's done, pick up the armor that's out in the open and locate the secret area beneath a lift. Finally, shoot the metal grill on the wall to reveal a hidden area with a Quad Damage.

Hop on this little Bit, then quickly hop back off it. Fall into the pit that's beneath the lift, grab the Megaphone, and use the Sliggate.

The next area is a bit tricky, so go right until you can just see in. Then, shoot up to your level. He'll be on the switch on the far wall. Hit the switches inside and run

5 Fight Back

Just beyond a hall lined with no from no different directions. Go on your left and look for a switch area. Once you've bagged the

There are bad all around, including a small bunch on a bridge and an Ogre who lobbs grenades from a ziggurat's nest. Don't try to defeat them before you've grabbed the armor and the Quad Damage.

Up on the bridge, you may spot a slight recess in the wall to your right. If you leap for it, you'll end up in a secret passage containing a rather classy Persimmon of Protection.

6 You Leap

Just decide to go for the gem from the way you came or you'll follow the passage around until you either go back and scour the level the last bridge and head straight

Vor's in Store

Be careful! At the start of the bridge, sidestep cautiously to hide a cage. Lob a grenade into the cage to make a Vor tele-charge you.) Clobber him, then go stand in front of the lift. Beat any Ogres that appear, and climb into the cage. Now out of the room.

Back After Bonuses

After the shooters, you'll enter the rooms where you'll be ambushed. Instead of taking on all your attackers, just defeat the Ogre on the ceiling. Shoot the switch and run left into a secret room. After the bonuses, start blasting away with abandon!

You Lose

As mentioned above, don't try leaping back into the room. You're likely to fall into very deep lava. Instead, you should fall back in the hall with the nail shooters. Now you can get it for any items you may have missed, or you can walk over for the Slippage.

1 Right Away

At the first fork in the road, turn right, then take another right up a ramp. Turn around, leap for the switch, and head right into the new hallway. Kill the Vor and run past the Vor to the corner of the room to discover a Quad Damage. Destroy the Vor and then fall down the hole in the floor. Now you'll be on a ledge with Red Armor just a few feet away.

Don't let Vor catch you. Instead of taking the Quad Damage, you'll find the secret to the Red

2 Well, Well, Well

Step off the ledge and walk over to the wall. Bomb any foes below as well while facing the wall. Now run forward so that you land down a Mast the corner to reveal a roomful of bonuses. Finally, run and fall

3 Which Switch Which

At the bottom of the well there's a cage and two switches. Skip over the path that leads (via lifts) to a switch on the floor. Hit it and head Next, bump the wall switch and climb into the cage. Flip the wall switch. Now, find the lift and take on the Core and finally a

4 A Heckuva Hike

Next, leap to the key on the other side of a hall and go down to the Gold Key door. Hit the switch inside, backtrack to the left passage off the main hall, and walk a long way until you find the spike trap shown below. Get past it to gain a cell and a pentagram.

5 Gladiators at the Gate

Having recovered the pentagram, dash back past the spike trap and through the opposite door. Run past any foes until you reach an open arena, then hop on the center lift and rain down destruction. Now leap to the ledge, nab the Quad Damage, and get in the Slippgate.

6 Another Savage Arena

Now you'll be in a huge room that's full of Fiends. Use the Thunderbolt on them. Once they're gone, a Yor will eventually appear in the middle of the room. Destroy him to reveal the Silver Key and another Slippgate, then use the Slippgate and dash back to the Silver Key door. Inside, climb on the cage, fall between the bars, and nab the bonus. Now the exit's only one Yor away!

NO GUTS, NO GLORY

Time to be brave, soldier. Because you're about to face your final foe. We don't need to give too much away here, but let's just say that your enemies know her simply as "Mom." And here's a big clue to bringing down this mother of all monstres: A Slippgate can be a better weapon than any amount of firepower!

Quest 64™

The logo for Quest 64 is presented on a purple, tattered banner that appears to be flying. The word "Quest 64" is written in a large, golden, gothic-style font. Each letter is intricately detailed with small red gemstones and gold filigree. The banner has a white, smoke-like or fire-like border at its edges.

MONSTER MANIA

Japan is being overrun by monsters. No, they're not toppling skyscrapers or crushing army tanks, but they are holding the hearts of players in a seemingly unbreakable grip. They're the Pokémon (also known as "Pocket Monsters" in Japan), and for the past two years, practically no one in Japan, young or old, has been safe from their ferocious charm. Their furred and fanged faces adorn nearly every kind of product imaginable, including books, toys, games, clothing, music CDs and even snack foods. In all, over 600 Pokémon-related products are now available in Japan, and the craze shows no signs of slowing down.

Red and Blue

The Japanese version of Pokémon for the Game Boy has sold over 8 million copies in just two years.

But where did the Pokémon come from? They didn't just pop out of thin air and onto the sides of lunch boxes. In fact, the entire craze began with the Pokémon role-playing game for the Game Boy. Now Nintendo is preparing to release Pokémon here, and there will be not one, but two versions of the game: A Red edition and a Blue edition. Why two versions? To answer that question, we'll have to start with the game's books.

COMBAT, CAPTURE, CUSTOMIZE

The primary goal in Pokémon is to find, capture and train various monsters, all in an effort to become the world's greatest Pokémon trainer. You'll choose one of three tamed "starter" monsters at the beginning of the game to help you capture other monsters.

Amazing Abilities

To capture a wild Pokémon, you'll have to wear it down in combat and then trap it inside of a device called a Monster Ball. Rather than doing battle yourself, however, your Pokémon will fight for you, gaining experience and learning new skills over time. Pokémon will have the potential to master all sorts of amazing abilities, like breathing fire, summoning tornadoes, hypnotizing foes and so on. Since you'll be able to choose which skills your Pokémon will learn, you'll even be able to "customize" them according to your tastes. With the proper care and training, your monsters will become stronger, learn new skills, and maybe even transform into entirely new creatures.

No two Pokémon are exactly alike, and individual monsters evolve from different types of combat training.

Master of Your Destiny

There will be 150 different Pokémon in the game, and each one you capture will be recorded automatically in your monster log book. Even if you fail to catch your quarry, the computer will make a note about the battle. As you scour the countryside for new monsters, you'll also encounter various obstacles and enemies, including rival Pokémon trainers and members of the notorious Team Rocket, a society of villains bent on conquering the world. While you won't be able to capture your rivals' tame Pokémon, fighting them will give your monsters valuable combat experience. Once you've defeated all your enemies, you'll win the coveted title of Pokémon Master.

COLLECTING CRAZE

Becoming a Pokémon Master will obviously be an important goal in the game, but the greater challenge and fun will be in collecting all 150 Pokémon. While it will be possible to find all the monsters your first time through the game, your monster log will be stored in a permanent memory file. When you complete a game and start a new one, your collection will remain intact, and you'll be able to pick up right where you left off.

1 + 1 = 2 Much Fun

What's even more exciting is the fact that you'll be able to trade monsters with other players through the Game Boy's Game Link cable. This is where the two editions of the game, Red and Blue, will come into play. To make the hunt for Pokémon more interesting and challenging, the two editions will feature the exact same game, but not the same mix of monsters. While a particular monster may be common and easy to find in the Red edition of the game, it may be rare and much tougher to find in the Blue edition. Therefore, if you can't locate a specific Pokémon in your Game Pak, you'll have to go to another player with a different edition of the game to find it. This is assuming, of course, that you'll have a monster that another player will want to trade for. Luckily for you, you'll be able to collect more than one of each type of monster and store the extras in a special monster bank. You'll then be able to use these extra monsters for trading, and you won't have to worry too much about draining your own collection.

Trading between the Red and Blue versions of the game will be essential to collect all 150 monsters. Each version will allow you to collect only about 100 different monsters—to get the rest, you'll need to wheel and deal!

TOUGH TRADES

Another incentive for trading is the fact that most Pokémon will develop more quickly after they've been traded. In fact, some types of Pokémon won't evolve completely unless they've been traded. If they're kept in the same Game Pak, they'll never reach their full power. This could lead to a lot of interesting wheeling and dealing. Think about it: if you have a monster that's "stuck" in one form and you want to get it "unstuck," you'll have to find someone who will take it on one trade and then give it back to you in the next. Of course, the other player will probably want a pretty sweet deal in return for such a big favor. If you think that trade negotiations in major league sports are tough, just wait until the Pokémon trade wars start!

Virtual Duels

Besides being able to trade, players will also be able to challenge each other's monsters through the Game Link. You'll be able to pit one or more of your monsters against an equal number of your rivals' monsters in a virtual combat arena. While you won't be able to capture Pokémon through Game Link combat, the victor will take home experience points and bragging rights. These monster duels have become such a popular pastime in Japan that one Japanese game show even has a segment devoted exclusively to them.

COLLECTIBLE COMBAT

With its emphasis on collecting and dueling, Pokémon has a lot in common with collectible card games (CCGs) like Magic: The Gathering. It should come as no surprise, then, that a Pokémon CCG was developed and released in Japan last year. The game boasted full-color art that was created specifically for the game by some of Japan's top comic book artists, plus stats and background information on all 150 Pokémon. The original set included 170 cards, but expansion sets soon pushed the total to 450. The game is currently being translated into English and will be released here this fall. This is just one of the many Pokémon products being readied, and while we don't have any official word yet on what other items will be available here, we'll be sure to keep you posted.

TERRIFIC TV

If you're a fan of Japanese anime (animated films and TV series), you'll be even more thrilled to hear about the Pokémon animated series, which is also being translated into English. This series is a prime-time hit in Japan, where its mix of monsters, mayhem and humor earn it high ratings for its time slot. The show has already been picked up for broadcast in 86% of the U.S. television markets, which means you probably won't have any trouble finding it once it begins airing in the fall. The series will be based loosely on the game's plot, following the exploits of a young Pokémon trainer and his tamed Pokémon, Pikachu. As our hero strives to become a Pokémon Master, he'll also battle against many sinister enemies, including Team Rocket members and their bumbling pet Pokémon, Meowth.

The Pokémon series will air five days a week starting this fall. Check your local TV listings for exact dates and times.

The Pokémon animated series will add new characters, situations and excitement to the game's story.

A MONSTROUS FUTURE

If you ask Japanese Pokémon fans what really sparked interest in the game, the great majority of them will tell you that it was the fun of collecting and trading that jump-started the whole Pokémon phenomenon. Collecting has long been a popular hobby on both sides of the Pacific, and from what we've seen so far, we have no doubt that Pokémon history will repeat itself here.

Stay Tuned

The Game Boy games, the TV show and the CCG have all received a lot of positive buzz here already. Web sites are popping up all over the Internet (look for the official www.pokemon.com this summer), and Nintendo has been receiving tons of calls from curious consumers. If you'd like to jump on the Pokémon bandwagon, too, don't worry. We'll be providing exclusive Pokémon coverage in future issues, including in-depth strategies for the Game Boy game and other special surprises, so stay tuned!

FLYING DRAGON

2 Games
in 1

This summer Natsume will release Flying Dragon, a title featuring two fighting games in one Pak. Will it be twice as fun as other tourney games?

Two-for-One Deal

No one will dispute that Flying Dragon is unlike any other tournament fighting game for the N64. The Rumble-Pak-compatible title features two games in one cartridge. The first game features colorful cartoon action with kid warriors and magical treasures. The other game doesn't have treasure or much originality, but it does have a clever program that grades your fighting skills. Neither game—in the early Japanese version we reviewed, Natsume calls each game a “mode”—has the flashy graphics or the cool sound effects of N64 titles like Killer Instinct Gold or Clayfighter 63%, but both modes feature easy-to-learn moves. That's a big plus if you don't have the dexterity or patience to practice thirteen-hit combos. Is it enough to make you want to buy it? Take a look.

A Fighting RPG?

Well, not exactly. As you win battles in Flying Dragon's kid-fighting SD Combat, you'll earn one of 200 treasures in the game. You can equip these treasures to increase your fighting chances against other warriors. The treasures fall into one of four categories: Action, Defense, Medicine and Special. Action items are offensive weapons and Defense items help protect your warrior. Medicine revives lost stamina.

A Special item won't damage your opponent directly, but it can increase your speed or slow down your foe.

After a winning match your warrior may win a treasure. Equipping these items will increase your fighter's offensive or defensive powers. You probably won't find all 200 items in the game, but you can trade your items with friends by using an N64 Controller Pak.

Versatile Modes

Flying Dragon is packed with customizable features for both SD and Virtual modes, so you can break the game to suit your tastes and skill level. Pick up the pace of the action by cranking the Turbo Level or increase the speed of your fighters' combo hits. If you're feeling defensive or you're tired of your character taking too many blows, toggle the Auto Guard Option to keep your warriors on their guard. If you're feeling nostalgic and want to go back to the early days of street fighting, there's an option for switching from the game's 3-D mode to a flat, 2-D format.

Whether you're a beginner or a street-fighting veteran, Flying Dragon's customizable option features let you pick a fight that matches your skills. Max out the game's Turbo Level and turn off the Combo level to speed up the hit.

Cute Kid Fighters

Flying Dragon's SD Mode is packed with lighthearted, animated kid-fighting tournament action. Armed with magical talismans, these mini-warriors kick, punch and head-butt their way to the top of the tournament podium.

TOURNAMENTS

Fighting and finding treasure in SD mode is only the beginning. Once your warriors are loaded down with cool goods, it's time to invite your fellow Flying Dragon friends over and find out who has the fighter with the best stuff in your own multiplayer tournament match. The game lets you customize your contest for up to eight players. Using N64 Controller Paks, you can trade the best and most powerful treasures between friends so everyone will have a fighting chance at coming out on top at your tournament.

No loser brackets here. To stay in the game and move up to the next level, your fighter must contend on top in a best-of-three-matches fight. If you're using SD Mode characters, you and your friends can use the special treasure items you've saved to your Controller Pak to get the inside edge.

EASY MOVES

Learning Flying Dragon's fighting moves is almost child's play. You don't have to press the buttons at lightning-fast speed to execute them. The kid fighters are often patient and give you plenty of time to plan your combos, but if you want uninterrupted practice, try out the game's practice mode. If you're a gamer who misplaces instruction manuals, you won't have to fret over lost moves—practice mode offers a user-friendly training feature that displays each character's moves on the screen so you can refresh your memory.

When compared to other fighting games, the moves in Flying Dragon are easy to learn and master. You don't have to press five buttons in a half second to pull off extended combos or multiple attacks.

SEEING SPOTS

SD Mode also features a Mind's Eye Mark option that will randomly place colored spots on the battle screen, indicating either where your opponent is about to attack or the location of the enemy's weak spot. Depending on the color of the spot, you can avoid damage or inflict extra pain on your foe.

Robonhana, the champion robot sumo wrestler, throws an opponent for an extra loss after pounding on his weak spot. The Mind's Eye Mark option can show you where your opponent is about to strike or where you can hit for extra damage.

Targeting your opponent's weak spot is a surefire way to get your prized fighter to the top of the tournament standings.

Serious Fighting

FLYING DRAGON

Virtual mode's tough fighters look cool and deadly serious. You would be, too, if you were being graded on your fighting skills—if you're lucky enough to get past the evil Ryumaou in the game's final battle.

GET TOUGH

You would think that Virtual mode was the adult version of SD mode, with the kids fighting as grown-ups. Not exactly. Three of the SD mode characters—Ryuh, Hayato and Shouryu-do make the transition to fight as adults in Virtual mode, but they've moved on to completely different moves. The other fighters are new characters. To win at Virtual mode, you'll have to defeat seven rivals and best the evil Ryumaou in the final battle.

MAKE THE GRADE

Virtual mode fighters earn a grade score each time they complete the circuit. Your grade is based on an assortment of criteria, including your win-loss record, artistic technique, the number of times you've fought in the Circuit, the average time it takes you to fight a match, and the average difference in strength between you and your opponent at the end of a match. Your grade goes up or down depending on how well you fight.

STAND TALL

Virtual mode's fighters are tougher to defeat than the opponents in SD mode. Most warriors will still be standing on their feet when the match time expires. If you're up against a tough opponent and you have a longer strength bar, go for the win by side-stepping your foe's attacks until time expires.

Unless Hayato is well oiled by a combat five seconds, this battle will time out. These guys are tougher than most fighters in other unshant-fighting games, so the clock plays a big role in determining the winner.

Even though three of the characters from SD mode also appear in Flying Dragon's Virtual mode, all of their moves are different. These seasoned warriors have shed their cuteness for tough-guy looks and rock-hard muscles.

1997 NINTENDO POWER AWARDS

AND THE WINNERS ARE...

We announced our nominees in Volume 106, and thousands upon thousands of seal mail and on-line votes later, we're drawing the curtains to honor the winners. The leader of the Packs in nominations was GoldenEye 007 and, not surprisingly, it practically swept our awards to become the gaming equivalent of Titanic the movie. What other games made a splash in '97? Dive in to find out what floats our readers' boats.

BEST GRAPHICS

GOLDENEYE 007

A game based on a movie should be visual enough to fill the silver screen, and GoldenEye paints a perfect picture, with detailed settings and characters who look like the actors. Even the animation was true to life, right down to listless soldiers who scratch and fly-swat their daddums away.

Runners-up:

1. Diddy Kong Racing
2. Star Fox 64

Don't tell Diddy or Banpei, but had we put James Bond in a kart, he'd probably win the Best Racing Game Award, too.

BEST SOUND

GOLDENEYE 007

The spy game had Grammy-caliber tunes, but it's not just the music that makes it worthy of auditory honors. The searing realism of the explosions and bullet fire will blow your ears away, too.

Runners-up:

1. Star Fox 64
2. Diddy Kong Racing

BEST CHALLENGE

GOLDENEYE 007

Aside from the usual (but nonetheless tricky) shoot-'em-up fare of bullet-dodging and sharp-shooting, GoldenEye introduced the element of surprise. Stealth sets the game apart from others and challenges players to restrain their itchy trigger fingers...or else.

Runners-up:

2. Diddy Kong Racing
3. Turok: Dinosaur Hunter

BEST STORY

GOLDENEYE 007

GoldenEye, the movie, already had a twisting and suspenseful plot, but Rare expanded it, filling in the flick's gaps to create an original story line worthy of Ian Fleming himself.

Runners-up:

2. Star Fox 64
3. Mischief Makers

BEST RACING GAME

DIDDY KONG RACING

Finally, GoldenEye gets shut out! But then, it doesn't feature three racing vehicles, dozens of tracks—or even a high-speed, rip-roarin' adventure, either.

Runners-up:

2. Mario Kart 64
3. San Francisco Rush

MOST INNOVATIVE

GOLDENEYE 007

Trevelyan: Two targets. Time for one shot. The girl or the mission?

Readers recognized GoldenEye for setting a new standard in first-person shooters. Rare replaced the search-and-destroy mentality of the Doom genre with mission objectives, so that a bullet was no longer the quick fix to every problem.

Runners-up:

2. Diddy Kong Racing
3. Blast Corps

BEST PLAY CONTROL

GOLDENEYE 007

GoldenEye's responsive play control belts us with hit detection so accurate that the slightest misfire could result in pelting an enemy's hat or gun. Moreover, 007 offers eight Controller configurations, including a few that allow one player to simultaneously use two Controllers so Bond can run and aim at the same time.

Runners-up:

2. Star Fox 64
3. Mario Kart 64

BEST SPORTS GAME

NFL QUARTERBACK CLUB '98

Even with two gridiron games splitting up the pigskin votes, both football titles managed to come out on top. And tackling all others was QBC. Regarded for its graphics, license and plays, QBC beat Madden 64 by more than twice as many votes.

Runners-up:

2. Madden 64
3. The NHLPA & NHL Present Wayne Gretzky's 3-D Hockey '98

BEST PARTY GAME SINCE TWISTER

GOLDENEYE 007

It just seems like since GoldenEye came along, any game without a multiplayer mode is half-baked. Stockpiled with weapons, characters and scenarios, "Live and Let Die" mode quite literally is a blast at parties, and, unlike Twister, it won't make you dislocate your spine.

Runners-up:

2. WCW Vs. WWF: World Tour
3. Bomberman 64

COOLEST RIDE

RUSSIAN TANK (GOLDENEYE 007)

What makes the Russian tank so much cooler than the hovering, tumbling Landmaster tank? Aside from the automatic coolness it earns from being in GoldenEye, the tank is a rarity in first-person shooters, enabling easy mobility, destruction, and the power to pancake soldiers in no time flat.

Runners-up:

2. Landmaster tank (Star Fox 64)
3. J-Bomb robot (Blast Corps)

THE CREATIVE CHAOS AWARD BLOWING UP THE FACILITY (GOLDENEYE 007)

As countless soldiers close in, you detonate your mines. If the massive explosion doesn't get them, the poison from the blown-up chemical tanks will. All the while, you'll have to escape the swirl of fire, gas and bullets. "Chaos" is an understatement.

Runners up:

2. Saucerer destroying Katana base (Star Fox 64)
3. Using the Chronoscepter (Tyrook: Dinosaur Hunter)

THE GOLDEN RUMBLE PAK

STAR FOX 64

Almost one year after Star Fox 64 introduced gamers to the Rumble Pak, the majority of our readers had the game as the definitive Rumble Pak title. Sharing every seismic blast of hyper lasers and smart bombs, Star Fox rocks our readers' worlds, Corneria, and beyond.

Reeners-up:

1. GoldenEye 007
2. WCW Vs. NWO: World Toer

COOLEST CODE OR TRICK

THE BIG CHEAT (TUROK: DINOSAUR HUNTER)

Turok bested all others by featuring a kit and cboxsode of extras in one handy code: NTHGTHDGD CRTDTRK. So it's not the easiest jumble of letters to remember, but once you've entered it into your Cheat Menu, you'll have invincibility, big heads and dino-loads of more tricks at your disposal.

Reeners-eps:

1. No Radar (GoldenEye 007)
2. Ned the Janitor (Mace: The Dark Age)

BEST HERO OR HEROINE

JAMES BOND (GOLDENEYE 007)

He risks life and limb to save the world for what? For England. Not for a check or trophy, but out of loyalty to his country (plus, he gets the girl). Now that's heroism.

Reeners-ups:

1. Fox McCloud (Star Fox 64)
2. Mario (Mario Kart 64)

WORST VILLAIN

JANUS/006 (GOLDENEYE 007)

Aside from being a ruthless, backstabbing, power-hungry megalomaniac, what makes 006 such a formidable foe is that he's 007's equal. Trevelyan and Bond share the same training, so Alec is able to anticipate James's every move.

Reeners-ups:

1. Andross (Star Fox 64)
2. Wispig (Diddy Kong Racing)

"You like me? You really like me?" exclaimed James Bond, 1997's Best Hero. Of course, we'd like him even more if he'd stop aiming that gun at us.

THE GOLDEN BANDAGE AWARD

HEAD SHOTS (GOLDENEYE 007)

GoldenEye makes pain the pleasure of sharpshooters everywhere by keeping tabs on where your bullets hit your victims, and the noggin is the most prized and painful target. This category's lesson: wear a bulletproof helmet (a cup and gas mask could help, too).

Runners-up:

2. The "groin smash" attack (WCW Vs. NWO: World Tour)
3. Boogerman's Flaming Fart Claytality (ClayFighter 63 1/3)

If you thought Slippy's non-stop whining was annoying in Star Fox 64, you should've heard his acceptance speech.

COOLEST ITEM OR WEAPON

THE GOLDEN GUN (GOLDENEYE 007)

Almost no reader could resist the Golden Gun. No matter how poor your aim, one hit from the gun will be as good as gold.

Runners-up:

2. Sniper Rifle (GoldenEye 007)
3. Quad rocket launcher (Turok: Dinosaur Hunter)

THE MORE-ANNOYING- THAN-THE-SPICE- GIRLS AWARD*

"FOX, GET THIS GUY OFF ME!" (SLIPPY, STAR FOX 64)

Do you know what Slippy wants? What he really, really wants? He wants you to get that guy off him—that's what! When faced with saving the annoyed annoying one from yet another bogey who's hot on his tail, most readers would let Slippy get shot down just to put an end to his incessant whining.

Runners-up:

2. "Oh-ow-ow-ow-ow!" (Toad, Mario Kart 64)
3. Most everything John Maddnn says (Maddnn 64)

* We've since learned from angry Spice Girls fans that the Spice Girls are, in fact, not annoying. But with all due respect to Girl Power, we're leaving the award's name as it is. As we've all come to find out, the Spice Girls (Who love you, Emma!) have an annoyance factor of zero. The nominated game features, on the other hand, have an annoyance factor of at least one, making them, therefore, still more annoying than the Spice Girls (who aren't annoying at all). Glad we cleared that up.

BEST SUPER NES

HARVEST MOON

Readers dedicated hours upon hours cultivating farms and relationships in Natsume's gem of an RPG. The game garnered such favor from gamers that it reaped our Best Super NES Game Award and

Renners-up:

1. Kirby's Dream Land III
2. The Lost Vikings 2

BEST GAME BOY

DONKEY KONG LAND 3

In a year marked by the introductions of colored Game Boy Pockets and the Tamagotchi craze, 1997 was also Game Boy's year for old standbys. Most notably, Dixie and Kiddie Kong, who spun and somersaulted through the third Game Boy Kong-against-Kremling adventure.

Renners-up:

1. Ken Griffey Jr. Presents: Major League Baseball
2. Tamagotchi

BEST N64

GOLDENEYE 007

Having the best graphics, sound, challenge, story, innovation, hero, villain, weapon, ride, play control, multiplayer mode and display of chaos should count for something. In the case of GoldenEye, they add up to a landslide. With more than five times as many votes as second place DKR, GoldenEye proved to be the Nintendo 64 game for 1997, and readers will likely be wrapped around 007's goldfinger for years to come.

Renners-up:

1. Diddy Kong Racing
2. Star Fox 64

▶ CORNER

▶ 1080° SNOWBOARDING

IS THERE A TRICK TO GETTING A FAST START?

You betcha, heavy shred-head. You can shave at least a second and a half off your Time Attack and Match Race times by pressing Up twice on the Control Stick the moment you hear the announcer yell "Go!" You can play it safe and get the boost every time by tapping up repeatedly on the Control Stick until you're moving. Use this same technique when you're getting up from a fall or whenever you're stuck in deep powder.

To get a quick jump off the starting line, press Up twice on the Control Stick when you hear the announcer yell "Go!"

You can also use the fast-start technique to get your tired rider out of deep powder or over the uphill side of a mogul or embankment.

WHAT'S THE BEST WAY TO STOMP MY JUMP LANDINGS?

The mechanics for setting up for a smooth landing are the same whether you're racing or going for start points. First, make sure that your board is at the same angle as the hill you're about to land on. If you're landing on a steep hill, make sure your board is tilted down to match the same angle as the slope. The more spins and stunts you execute, the more time you'll need to adjust your balance before landing. Sprins tend to tilt riders out of balance, so you'll spend more time recovering from maneuvers than plain old big-air jumps. If you get into trouble, try landing on the back of your board, but make sure you're holding down the Z Button as you touch down so you don't slide on impact.

If you're trying to land on a steep slope, tilt your board so it matches the angle of the hill.

The more spins you execute, the more you'll tilt. Take time to adjust your balance before landing.

If you land on the back of your board, press the Z Button so you avoid sliding out of control.

▶ YOSHI'S STORY

WHAT'S THE FASTEST WAY TO SNIFF OUT HIDDEN ITEMS?

Almost everyone thinks they have to stop and smell everything to sniff out hidden coins and melons. While we highly recommend stopping to smell the roses in life, save yourself some game time by adopting the highly-recommended and Yoshi endorsed run and sniff method. All you need to do is hold down the R Button to make your Yoshi sniff while you guide him through the story-book pages. Yoshi will pause and wave his hands to alert you if you pass over anything worth stopping and stomping out.

Hold down the R Button as you trot through the level to sniff out hidden goods while on the run.

Yoshi will sound the alarm to alert you if he sniffs out anything worth stomping out.

? WHERE CAN I FIND THE BLACK YOSHI? ?

The Black Yoshi is one of the rarest Yoshis in the game, and you'll find him in one of two places: Bone Dragon Pit on Page 2-1 or the Tormentil Maze.

Maze on Page 2-4. In the Bone Dragon Pit, walk left from the fourth Miss Warp, lick the Tulip and blast up a high chamber holding a floating Mystery Ball. Pop the ball to get the Black Yoshi Egg. You'll have to swing across all of the vines on the right side of the third Miss Warp to find the Black Yoshi Egg in the Tormentil Maze.

You'll earn the Black Yoshi if you find the Black Egg in the Bone Dragon Pit or the Tormentil Maze.

Blast up into this chamber in the Bone Dragon Pit to find the Mystery Bubble holding the egg.

Swing across these vines in the Tormentil Maze to find the egg in the far right corner.

? HOW ABOUT THE WHITE YOSHI? ?

hop left from the second Miss Warp until you see a Mystery Ball floating next to a spring. Pop the ball to collect the White Egg. Finding the egg in the Poochy & Nippy maze is a little confusing. The trick is to find the path where Poochy is barking next to a red pipe. Walk to the left and jump down the red pipe in the middle of the path. Pop the Mystery Ball at the bottom of the pipe to earn the White Yoshi Egg.

While different in color, the White Yoshi has the same food preferences as the Black Yoshi.

Trot left past the second Miss Warp to discover the White Egg atop The Tall Tower.

If you hold down the R button Poochy & Nippy you'll find a Mystery Ball and the White Egg.

AEROFIGHTERS ASSAULT

WHAT DO I NEED TO DO TO GET THE HIDDEN AIRCRAFT?

You can earn the F-15J Eagle if you continue more than three times in the Tokyo stage. The prized X-29A ATD, a dolphin-safe, next-generation fighter, is tougher to get—you'll need to complete all four bonus stages in the game to be able to select the aircraft. And in case you're wondering which stages are bonus stages, take a heading for the Air Landing, Shuttle Defense, Goliath Defense and Space levels.

You'll get a frequent flyer upgrade to Mico Masaki's F-15J if you continue four times in Tokyo.

Spanky the dolphin will join the team after you complete the game's four bonus stages.

HOW DO I EXECUTE THE COBRA AND THE CULBIT MOVES?

The FS-X, SU-35 Super Flanker and X-29A ATD are the only aircraft that can execute the Cobra and the Culbit moves. The Cobra is a braking move that can force a trailing enemy to overshoot your plane, giving you the opportunity to return fire. The Culbit is a backflip you can use to quickly reverse directions. To perform either move, pull down on the Control Stick and hit the bottom C Button, then release and pull down on the Control Stick and press the upper C Button. To do the Cobra, simply release the Control Stick to finish the move. To do the Culbit, keep holding down on the Control stick after you release the upper C Button. No matter which move you execute, the most important rule is to maintain your altitude. If you're flying too close to the ground, your fighter's nose will tilt towards the ground, quickly beating your plane into a supersonic plowshare.

Remember Top Gun? The Cobra is a braking move that gives you the same tactical advantage.

The Culbit is a backflip that can quickly deter any enemies trying to sneak up from behind.

HOW DO I EXECUTE A RUDDER REVERSAL?

The rudder reversal move will work only with the F-14B Tomcat, F-15J Eagle and A-10A Thunderbolt II aircraft. A rudder reversal will turn your aircraft completely around in a small space, allowing you to turn the tables on any enemy following close behind you. To execute the move, raise the nose of your fighter at least 30 degrees, brake the plane and tap the left or right C Button depending on which direction you want to turn. It's important to remember that you'll probably be an easy target while braking, so check your radar and make sure that the enemy can't hit you before you make your move.

The rudder reversal is the tightest turn in the sky, but only the F-14, F-15J and A10-A can do it.

Raise your nose at least 30 degrees before you brake and tap the left or right C Button.

Check the enemy's range and angle of attack on radar before you make your move.

▶ FINAL FANTASY LEGEND

WHAT DO I DO AT THE STATUE OF HERO?

If you have the King's Armor, Shield and Sword, un-equip them, face the Statue of Hero and use each item on it. You'll receive the Black Sphere after all the items are on the statue. While everything is so far sounds fine and dandy, your party will be attacked by Gen-Bu the terrible turtle the moment you turn away from the statue. To survive the battle, make sure your hero has around 120 points and have your Mutant cast Fire or Ice. Elec spells also work great.

Remove the King's Armor, Shield and Sword and use them on the Statue of Hero.

Keep your team at full strength, because you'll be attacked as you leave the statue.

? WHERE IS THE REAL ORB IN THE ORB ROOM? ?

So many orbs and so little patience for searching, hrrrrrrrr? Remember when you walked through the previous rooms and saw lines of orbs? In one room there was a vertical line of orbs and in the other room there was a horizontal line of the glass globes. Imagine if the two orb rows were put in the same room—the rows would overlap in one spot. If you moved your character to that spot, you would be standing on the real orb. If you still don't get it, or you have a wildly faulty imagination, count three orbs down and three orbs left from the upper right corner. Face that orb and press the A button to finally get it.

Two rooms before the Orb Room you'll see a row of horizontal orbs. Remember the location.

In the next room you'll see a row of vertical orbs. Visualize the horizontal orbs stacked on this row.

In the Orb Room, imagine where the two rows intersect—that's where you'll find the orb.

BOMBERMAN™

GB

Bomberman is back to whip up some fun in a password-backed, Indiana Jones-style adventure!

© 1993 Nintendo

Our bomb-tossing, helmeted hero is back for another wild adventure on Game Boy! Bomberman GB is the seventh Nintendo title this explosive character has appeared in since his debut on the Nintendo Entertainment System all the way back in 1989. In case you've been living at the bottom of an abandoned mine shaft, Bomberman is a little guy who runs around solving puzzles and dispatching bad guys with an endless supply of bombs. He's so popular that legions of gamers will admit that their favorite multiplayer game of all time is a Bomberman game—whether it was on the NES, Super NES, Game Boy or Nintendo 64, Bomberman GB continues the explosive tradition, offering a multiplayer match mode for one to four gamers using a Super Game Boy and a four-player adapter. If your tastes run toward one-player, puzzle action, Bomberman GB features two huge puzzle modes with almost 50 levels each! Both puzzle games are based on an Indiana Jones-style movie, with plenty of dangerous jungles and treacherous ruins for our fedora-clad adventures to blast and explore.

This month's review covers Bomberman GB's items and features, but the game's puzzle modes were so large that we had only enough space to cover the challenging levels and bosses in Mode A. Luckily for you, most of the puzzle maps and all of the tips for defeating the bosses are the same for Mode B.

STORY MODE

TWO WAYS TO PLAY

There are a couple ways to play Bomberman GB's one-player game. The object in Mode A is to destroy all the enemies in the stage and reach the exit door before time expires. You do the same thing in Mode B, except that in it you must destroy the enemies in a certain order.

MODE A: Time Trial

Destroy all the enemies in any order to open the exit door in Mode A.

MODE B: Monster Count

The clock is running down, but the exit won't open until all the monsters are gone.

In Mode B, you'll have to destroy the enemies in a specific order to open the exit door.

BATTLE MODE

MULTIPLAYER ACTION ON SUPER GAME BOY

Up to four players can hook up and play a Bomberman GB multi-player match using the Super Game Boy and a four-player adapter on their Super NES. If you don't have four players, select the options menu and let the CPU control as many as three bomber-rivals.

Using a Super Game Boy and a Super NES four-player adapter, you can battle it out with four other gamers.

Choose from one of six different arenas, listed in the one-player game.

Depending on which arena you select, you'll find special power-ups.

Set the duration of your match anywhere from two minutes to infinity.

To win this Battle Mode contest, one player must win four matches.

Your Bomberman will start in a corner of the Battle Mode arena. Where you go depends on your game strategy.

POWER-UPS

BOMB COUNT Finding this power-up will raise the number of bombs you can drop at once by one. You can drop a maximum of four bombs at once.

BOMB POWER Picking up this power-up extends the radius of your bomb explosion by one square. The maximum is four squares.

EXTRA LIFE Of all the power-ups, the Extra Life is the rarest in the one-player game. Luckily, Bomberman GB has unlimited continues.

AREA POWER-UPS

WHIP Use Area 2's Whip power-up to push your bombs across the screen and into your enemies. This power-up is identical to the Hammer power-up used in other Bomberman games.

DASH Area 2's Dash power-up lets you run with a burst of speed whenever you hold down the B Button. This item is essential for eluding the fast monsters in the game's advanced levels.

LINE BOMB Use the Line Bomb power-up from Area 4 to lay down a string of bombs in front of your face. This item can clear out a room in seconds.

TACKLE Area 5's Tackle power-up is perfect for stunning those l-dwelling monsters. Just remember that it won't work on all of the monsters in the game.

MOTO BOMBER The Area 6 Moto Bomber power-up jumps rocks and blocks and protects Bomberman from one hit.

The final power-up in the game is a secret, but it's worth the trouble. You'll earn it if you complete Area 7 in Story Mode A or Story Mode B.

STORY MODE A

The object of Story Mode A is always the same: You need to locate and destroy all of the wandering monsters to open the exit door. After all the monsters are eliminated, it's a race against time to get through the exit door before time expires. You'll quickly find that your time limit isn't the same for every level.

BOSS 1 Time - 5:00

It takes six hits to defeat this ugly beast. You'll have a better chance of hitting him if you place your bombs at the center of an intersection, not between two blocks. Just make sure you don't accidentally blow yourself up.

AREA 1 MONSTER TRIAL

Monster Trial is a rocky and foreboding castle inhabited by ghouls and ghosts. You won't find any area power-ups here, but you will be able to load up on bombs and bomb power, especially in places where you have lots of time to search, like Levels 1-2 and 1-3.

1-1 Time - 1:50

Level 1-1 is so small that it can support only three machines, but you have less than two minutes to blow this score.

Increase your chances of scoring more bombs by blasting three bombs at once.

1-4 Time - 3:00

Spacious Level 1-4 is a good example of a tough area where a few monsters are spread out in a large room. The trick is quickly clearing out levels like this to arrive equipped to drop four bombs at once. Did you uncover four between Levels 1-2 and 1-3?

AREA 2 HIDEOUT SWAMP

2-3 Time - 5:00

Hideouts don't count as monsters, but you'll still have to locate and destroy them before the exit door will open. Level 2-3 is huge, so we've marked the locations of the monsters and hideouts so you'll find all of them.

BOSS 2 Time - 5:00

And all those UFO experts thought the search sightings were just swamp gas! The trick to winning this battle is to dodge the aerial mines and hit the UFO whenever the alien leader has his head sticking out of the top of the flying saucer.

What the heck is a hideout? In Bomberman GB it's not a den of thieves—it's another term for quicksand. You won't see this sticky stuff unless you're standing next to it. The key to surviving this muddy area is to take your time and watch your step.

2-5 Time - 4:40

If you use your whip to push the bombs out in front of you, you'll avoid the quicksand, swamps and the clutches of the swamp-dwelling beasts.

You won't spot these sneaky hideouts until you're standing right next to one. Move slowly whenever you wander off into unexplored regions.

If you're stuck here, you have a right to be angry. The tough harvest crates in Level 2-5 take two bombs to defeat. Place the bombs at the intersections to increase your chances of hitting them as they skitter around.

AREA 3 SWITCH RUINS

3-3 Time - 4:30

Even with the Dash power-up, Level 3-3's head-changing monsters are difficult to chase. Clear out an escape route before you go hunting.

BOSS 3 Time - 5:00

The only time you can hurt this pawheeling pest is when his face is on the ground. Stay beyond the range of his spinning arms and dodge his tail whip until he stops spinning. Your Dash power-up will keep you one step ahead of this wirking derfisk.

Many times you'll have to search an entire room to find the last switch. The final switch for Level 3-3 is in the lower right-hand corner.

The Dash power-up is one of the most useful items in Bomberman GB. To run fast, hold the B Button as you move through the maze. The Dash won't work if you're using a Turbo Button.

3-4 Time - 4:40

You'll start releasing monsters as you hit the switches in Level 3-4. Don't be surprised if a meowing mouse tries to trap you in a blind alley and bite you from behind.

AREA 4 MIGHTY MONSTERS

4-2 Time - 4:10

Reaching the gem in the upper left corner of the room is the toughest part of this puzzle. If you have to free a monster to reach it, remember that the shuffling memory in the engine is to dodge during a chase.

If you place the bombs between the blocks, you can trap some monsters. This flying beast won't be giving you trouble until you grab the big gem.

BOSS 4 Time - 5:00

This mummy isn't tough once you learn to anticipate and dodge his projectile pattern. Watch carefully and you'll notice that the mummy always shoots three wraps at you. One piece of cloth flies vertically and the other two fly diagonally.

Using the Lion Bomb power-up will quickly clear out an area, but it won't destroy the invisible monsters wandering around in Area 4.

4-4 Time - 5:00

You'll need to destroy five genes before you can open the exit door in Level 4-4. Clear out as much of the maze as possible before releasing the monsters and using your Dash power-up to race to the remaining genes.

AREA 5 MONSTER'S TONGUE

5-2 Time - 4:30

Level 5-2 is a breeze. Just remember not to step past a Monster Tongue before blasting clear the road ahead. Wandering monsters will try to trap you if you're not along.

5-5 Time - 5:00

Navigating between the pairs of Monster Tongues is the key to surviving Level 5-5. Use your Whip power-up to slide the beams ahead and between the two statues to keep the path open.

Monster's Tongue sounds kind of sloppy, but this puzzle area is in the middle of an arid desert. Magical stone monster statues block the roads through the wastelands with their heavy tongues. Dropping a bomb by each tongue will temporarily clear the trail.

Trapped
Calculate the length of your bomb blast before you try to step between two Monster Tongues.

The Tackle power-up temporarily stuns monsters so you can run past them or stop them from changing. Use your bombs to finish the beasts.

BOSS 5 Time - 5:00

Like the Murray hack in Area 4, this scarrying Scorpion has a predictable pattern. Dodge the vertical and diagonal swings of his claws, then run up and place a bomb in front of him as he backs into the wall at the top of the chamber.

AREA 6 CAVE TRIAL

6-3 Time - 5:30

Use the Mega Hammer to jump between crates without using your bombs. You can keep the monsters trapped until you meet them.

It's impossible to distinguish a crate from a power-up in the dark. Find and bomb the burning barrel to avoid blowing up the wrong item.

The burning barrel is at the center of the rooms in Level 6-3. Divide the rooms into quarters and return to light the barrel after you finish searching a segment.

BOSS 6 Time - 5:00

The Flaming Chalice is the toughest enemy you'll meet before the final battle. The only time you can damage the Chalice is when it is touching the floor. Watch its deadly dance and you'll see a pattern.

6-5 Time - 5:30

Like Level 6-3, the burning barrel is at the center of the rooms in Level 6-5. Searching the rooms in segments will ensure that you find all the power-ups, especially Taps, and destroy every monster.

AREA 7 JUNGLE WARP

7-2 Time - 5:00

Keeping your bearings is the toughest part of solving Level 7-2. You can hit the switches without disturbing the water-stars, but you'll have to track them down after you knock down the pillars. The bird in the upper left corner is the hardest beast to find.

Monsters can't chase you through a warp point. Hop into a warp point, drop a beam and warp back to safety before the beasts can get away.

7-5 Time - 0:20

Thoroughness is the key to finishing Level 7-5. Completely search each section of jungle before you warp to the next section. Wipe out all the monsters and hit the switches so you never have to backtrack or look for things you missed the first time.

7-4 Time - 6:20

Dorab and take out every monster you see as you search for switches. That way the only beast you'll have left is the Kivi Bird in the upper right corner next to the oak tree.

BOSS 7 Time - 5:00

The only way to derange this fire-breathing muck is to time your bombs to explode when it stops moving. Stay near the edges of the room to avoid being tripped and scorchered.

FINAL BATTLE

After you defeat all the big baddies again, you'll have to take on the final foe in three forms. To win, you'll have to blast him 20 times without getting hit more than once.

The last battle is tougher than anything else in the game. You'll win if you keep circling and stay away from the center of the room.

MODE B AWAITS YOU...

You don't have to defeat the final monster in Area 8 to go back to the beginning of the game and play Mode B. Mode B's mazes look the same, but you have to defeat the numbered monsters in an exact order, and the game clock quickly ticks away valuable seconds.

FEATURES
SPROUTING UP
FROM THIS PAK!

COUNTRY LIFE

Your ancestors bought the farm, and now it's up to you to turn it around. At least that's what the ghost of your grandfather tells you late one night. You'll have a year to make the place productive. Planned for release this spring (we have pictures from the Japanese version right now), Natsume's Harvest Moon is about managing a farm and finding happiness. The game's clock automatically ticks off time, so you have to plan your day carefully so you don't neglect your crops in the field or let your animals get hungry. Nobody knew hard work could be this much fun!

TIMES ARE A-CHANGIN'

While Harvest Moon for Game Boy looks much like the popular Super NES Harvest Moon, there are a few changes. Now you can play as a boy or a girl. You won't find a forest or be able to wander around the town, but you can plant different crops and mess around with new items, like a pick, a first-aid kit, a fishing rod, and a magical, rain-making umbrella. There's even an underground lake beneath the tool shed!

This Harvest Moon doesn't have a big spread or a shady forest, but it does have more tools and crops than the Super NES version.

MEANWHILE, BACK AT THE RANCH

Even though your Game Boy storage is smaller than the Super NES Harvest Moon farm, it has all the same buildings and a few extra features hidden beneath the surface. Your barn has space for four milking cows, and the chicken coop has room for four clucking hens. You can pick mushrooms growing in the root cellar beneath the tool shed, fish in the underground lake, or relax and revive your stamina by soaking in the steaming waters of the subterranean spa.

EAT YOUR BROCCOLI

Harvest Moon for Game Boy offers your standard crop fare—turnips, potatoes, tomatoes and corn—but now you can also grow eggplants, peanuts, carrots and broccoli. You'll have to carefully plan your money-making schemes. For example, the shipper won't pay much for turnips, but they grow faster than potatoes. Do you go for making a fast buck or hold out for a bigger cash crop? You'll also have to consider the location of your shipping crate and water supply before you design your fields.

Use your heavy hammer and sharp axe to break up rocks and stumps, clearing your property for additional fields and pastures.

WHERE IT'S AT ## HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

Precise field design is the key to getting the most money out of your crops. Each sack of seeds covers a 3x3 area. If you set your plants up in rows, you'll find it's easy to water the crops and harvest them before the shipper picks up your produce.

Every new day starts out inside your humble abode. Check tomorrow's weather forecast on the television before you make plans.

Plan and design your fields around the shipping crate so you spend more time picking and less time hauling your crops around.

PLUMB TUCKERED OUT

You have only so much energy to do a day's worth of chores, then you'll collapse in the field and have to sit the day.

LOVE IS IN THE AIR

In Super NES Harvest Moon, you had to balance your time between dating women in town and getting your work done in the fields. Things are a little easier in the Game Boy version. Now the dating prospects walk all the way from town to come out to see you or remind you about upcoming festivals and social events. You don't even have to snoop in anyone's diary to find out how much people like you. In Harvest Moon GB you need to concentrate on managing the farm, not worrying about the dating scene.

The lovely folk in these parcels so desperate for company that they'll walk all the way out to your place to visit for a spell.

CARE AND FEEDING

Your crops will make money in the spring and summer, but how do you get by during the cold months? Cows and chickens are best bets for year-round cash, but you'll have to spend extra time feeding and caring for your animals. Contented cows will earn loads of money if they can fill huge milk jugs. Brush and talk to your cows to keep them content.

CITY SLICKERS

The town near your farm has everything you'll need to get started, but all of it comes with a price tag. The flower shop sells seasonal crop seeds. The inn carries beverages you won't find anywhere else for miles. The carpenter will sell you wood or offer to remodel your house. The church dispenses advice and information, while the tool shop has a sprinkler for your fields or saddlebags for your horse. The restaurant has food to fill your pantry, and the feed store is where you'll go to buy cows and chickens and anything you'll need to keep your animals healthy.

The maximum animal capacity at your farm is four chickens, four cows, a horse and a dog or cat. You'll need to feed and care for the chickens and cows every day to keep them happy, healthy and producing food throughout the year.

VISITING TOWN

- 1 Flower Shop
- 2 Inn
- 3 Carpenter
- 4 Temple
- 5 Tool Shop
- 6 Restaurant
- 7 Feed Store

The inn is the only place in town that stays open after the sun sets. The innkeeper's inventory will change every season.

You'll wear out quickly if you don't stock your pantry. Slip down to the bakery once or twice a week to replenish your supply.

LINK UP

Any Harvest Moon farmer can tell you that raising a blue-ribbon-winning cow takes days of feeding, brushing and talking. It's like building up your character fifty levels in other RPG games. Luckily for you, Natsume has added a Game Link option so you can trade livestock by hooking up with another Harvest Mooner. Now you can count your chickens without waiting for them to hatch. Can you imagine how much money you could make if you owned a barn full of prized heifers at the start of your first year?

Do you want to hold your own farmer's market? Snap in the Game Link cable and link up with a fellow farmer to trade livestock.

GO UNDERGROUND

The underground caverns beneath your farm have the resources you'll need to get through the harsh winter. Mushrooms grow down there throughout the year, so you can sell them for extra money or buy a fishing pole and fish in the underground lake. If you get too tired, take a soak in the steaming hot springs. The warm, bubbling waters have a soothing effect on muscles, so you'll be ready for more work when you dry off. There are other places to explore down there, but you'll have to find a way around the fallen boulders.

If all the hard farm work has you tattered out, replenish your energy by taking a soak or live in the underground hot springs.

Do you want to go fishing or pick mushrooms? You can do so then the underground caverns beneath the farm at any time of the year.

LIVING WITH THE LITTLE PEOPLE

It's no twist of fate that you live above a hot springs, an underground lake, and other mysterious and magical places. You're sharing your space with a family of dwarves that lives beneath the tool shed. These dwarves have magical powers, so it's a good idea to be nice to them and help them whenever you can. By sharing your mushrooms and fish with them, any Harvest Moon farmer will tell you that those who help a dwarf in need will be grandly compensated for their generosity.

Dwarves have plenty of helpful hints for recovering hidden surprises. Talk to them and try to help them in any way you can.

This room is totally buried in rock. If you help the dwarves clear it out, they might share their treasure with you.

MOVING ON UP

You've raised your livestock and have a barn full of mooing cows and a coop stuffed with clucking chickens. The crops are so plentiful and thick that you spend all day picking and all night watering. You're earning almost 10,000 gold each day. But if you're going to live the good life, you should look the part. Go see the carpenter in town and get your house remodeled. You don't want to disappoint the ghost of your grandfather when he floats down to see the place.

It was your destiny to turn this farm around. After you toil for a year, your ancestors will return to tell you how well you've done.

DO IT AGAIN

If anyone ever complained about anything in the Super NES version of Harvest Moon, it was that the game ended after two and a half years. You don't have to worry about this in the Game Boy version. You can keep playing long after your ghostly ancestors have come back to see how well you've done on the farm. Now you can keep your prize cows or trade them for other goods with farmers on the Game Link cable. Seek out the happy ending you've always wanted.

BRAIN DRAIN™

NO BRAIN, NO GAIN, THANKS TO ACCLAIM

Brain Drain follows in the footsteps of puzzlers like Tetris, Dr. Mario and Tetris Attack. Using the Brain Drain cursor, players rotate pieces into new positions and try to match the pattern in the upper left corner of the screen within a limited time. With two game play modes, 241 puzzles to solve, and password backup, this Game Boy puzzler offers a lot of brain draining. It may seem to start out easy, but soon you'll hear a giant sucking sound as your brain goes dry.

MAIN BRAIN

The main game begins with a pattern made with two pairs of pieces. That pattern is scrambled into a jumble, and you'll have a limited time to return the pattern to its original form. After every five levels, a bonus area pops up. Every so often, a Level Code appears, which is a password that will return you to that level should you quit or run out of credits.

CLOGGED DRAIN

Special effects known as teasers, blocks, slow motion and blackouts occur on some levels at the Student and Genius difficulty levels. The regular blackout shown on the left is a block of four question marks that hides the real objects

BONUS BRAINERS

Straighten out the picture puzzles to win a power-up item—either a 1-U, or a level skip.

POWER UPS

Earn power-ups like the Clock and Flash at the lower levels and use them on the upper levels where things get tough.

Earn the Clock by finishing a puzzle within ten seconds. Activate it when the timer is at one second.

BRAIN GAIN

The most important thing to do in Brain Drain is to concentrate on the pieces in the pattern and to group similar pieces together, but there are some other basic strategies that will help you get started, and we've listed them below.

REVERSE THE MESS

Don't even try to figure out the reverse order of the scrambling process. Even if you could do it, it wouldn't result in the fastest solution to the puzzle.

LISTEN FOR THE CLOCK

Ignore the timer and concentrate on the puzzle and the positions of pieces. When ten seconds remain, the music changes, warning you to hurry.

ALIGN THE STAGGERED PIECES

into columns of all squares or all circles. Once you do that, you can easily move them into the final position.

This is your starting position. In this case, you want the cursor in the middle of the row.

By rotating the cursor once clockwise, you'll move a column of squares closer to the left edge.

Move the cursor left and rotate clockwise twice to position the two end pieces and bring the other two squares together.

To finish things up, rotate the cursor once clockwise. The puzzle is solved.

TURN ENTIRE STACKS

Once you align columns or rows into matched pairs, your job is much easier because you can move the pair as a finished unit. This example shows the benefit of matching pairs.

With the cursor over the second and third columns from the left, you'll be set to make your move.

The solution is achieved by rotating the cursor twice to reverse the positions of the squares and get column.

BIG STEPS AND FINE TUNING

It's best to solve puzzles in pieces. First, move pieces toward the general areas where they need to end up. After organizing things into approximate locations, you can see relationships more clearly, which helps in making the final moves.

One major organizing goal in this puzzle will be to move the four pieces into the middle.

Positioning the cursor at these lower rows allows you to rotate two pieces into the correct positions.

BRAIN RACE

This mode is all about speed and your cumulative time. At Rookie level, the race is ten puzzles. At Student level, you'll race for 25 puzzles and at Genius level, 50.

BRAIN RACE

HALL OF FAME

If you beat the high scores, you can enter your name in the Hall of Fame.

DEEP THOUGHTS

Brain Drain mixes out on two-player action, but for a single-player puzzle, it should keep you busy for quite a while. The puzzles quickly become very complex, and with more than 200 of them, your brain will be strained to solve them all.

MICKEY MOUSE

Magic Wands!

SCURRYING FROM DISNEYLAND BACK INTO GAME BOY LAND, MICKEY MOUNTS A MOUSE HUNT TO FIND THE WIZARD WHO HAS IMPRISONED HIS PALS. WITH 40 LEVELS OF SEARCHING AHEAD OF HIM, HE'S GOING TO FIND THAT IT'S NOT SUCH A SMALL WORLD AFTER ALL.

OF MICE AND GAME BOYS

M-I-C... See, Mickey and his pals were taking a leisurely stroll through the forest when they stumbled upon an evil wizard who fiendishly craved to capture them. K-E-Y... Why? Because she hates them!

But at least one good thing comes out of the whole predicament: a new Mickey Mouse adventure for Game Boy. Mickey Mouse: Magic Wands! takes many of Disney's classic characters and puts them in a 40-level sidescroller that teems with enemies as magical as Fantasia. However, almost all of the those Disney friends have been imprisoned by the wizard, so it's up to Mickey to journey through her castle, unlocking doors, finding magical warps, and leaping flooded dungeons to find the puzzle pieces that will free his friends.

Along the way, Mickey will find magic wands that will give him special powers. These powers, such as freezing abilities, will not only help Mickey fight, but they'll help him solve puzzles, too. While the puzzles, fights and general game play are more suited for beginning gamers, the brain-teasing challenges and enemies' intelligence are clever enough to be fun, but never insulting, to veteran gamers. Plus, with a lovable stable of characters and more levels than you can shake a wand at, Mickey Mouse: Magic Wands! will be an E ticket ride for any Disney fanatic.

PUZZLE PIECES

To free his pals from the wizard's spell, Mickey must find the puzzle pieces that complete the portraits of his friends. Mickey will end up assembling over 40 puzzles before meeting up with the evil spellbinder.

Each of the 40 levels contains at least one puzzle portrait that Mickey must complete. The puzzles will reveal such Disney favorites as Donald, Minnie, Goofy, Pluto, Daisy and even lesser known characters like Figaro, the cat from Pinocchio.

ENEMIES

To put a stop to Mickey's rescue mission, the wizard has filled her castle with a Magic Mountain's worth of magical animals and monsters.

BAT: Unlike Mickey, a bat can attack from above, so lure it down to your level, then throw an apple at it.

FIREBALL: Wave the wand to temporarily freeze a fireball, or throw an apple or ice cube to permanently smother it.

FROG: A frog, like all of these foes, can't jump over gaps, so Mickey can escape the toady by leaping to other levels.

SKELETON: Mickey can't defeat the skeleton, but he can stop it momentarily by using his wand or apples.

SNAKE: Destroy any eggs you see in the third world, because every one will hatch into a slithering snake.

WITCH: Apples will defeat a witch, but nothing will stop the fireballs she throws, so steer clear of her missiles.

SNOWMAN: A snowman can quickly close in by balling himself up and then steamrolling your way.

STATUE: A statue will come to life when Mickey walks by, and it'll head one way until it reaches a wall or end of a ledge.

ITEMS

Inside the castle, Mickey will find many crystals. By waving his wand at one, it will change into an item or enemy.

APPLE: Defeat an enemy by tossing an apple at it. Mickey can throw sideways, but not up or down.

CANDY: Whenever Mickey's health is low, eat a piece of candy. The lollipop will completely fill his health meter.

MUSIC BOX: The music box's tune will stop enemies in their tracks. Play it when more than one enemy is in Mickey's way.

KEY: Stand by a keyhole, then select the key to unlock a door or raise a bridge, so Mickey can reach a new area.

CUPCAKE: As far as items go, this is the frosting on the cake. Each 7-up cupcake will give you an extra Mickey.

MAGIC WANDS

As the sorcerer's apprentice in Fantasia, Mickey learned a thing or two about magic wands. In this adventure, he'll learn a few more tricks because he'll be using four different wands. Mickey will automatically begin the game with a basic wand, but after that, he'll have to earn each new wand by defeating the monster at the end of each 10-level world.

MAGIC WAND: In Levels 1-10, Mickey will have the basic wand that charges crystals into helpful items or harmful monsters.

FREEZE WAND: After finishing Level 10, Mickey will be able to cross pools and waterfalls by freezing them with this cool wand.

ICE CUBE WAND: To climb to high areas, use the Ice Cube Wand to create a frozen stepping stone. Mickey will earn this wand after finishing Level 20.

SNOWBALL WAND: Once you've completed Level 30, your new wand will allow you to throw ice cubes like apples.

THE WAND-ERFUL WORLD OF DISNEY

Mickey Mouse's adventure will take you through four worlds filled with ten levels apiece. Lurking in the tenth level of every world will be a monster. If Mickey can defeat it, he'll earn a new wand that will have more powers than the last. Fittingly, every level that follows will be trickier than the last, so prick up those mouse ears and pay attention. You'll need to prepare yourself for the troubles and traps that each world will introduce.

LEVELS 1-10

CANNONBALL RUN

The cannon fires one ball at a time, and it won't refill until its leached ball hits something. If you must leap into the line of fire, enter it right after the cannon has fired.

LADDER LEAP

By leaping onto ladders, Mickey can quickly reach a high area. Better yet, enemies can't jump onto ladders, so ladder leaping will help Mickey distance himself from enemies.

FIRE KING

Two hits from your magic wand will defeat the Fire King, but you can't attack him until you've extinguished his four orbiting fireballs. A wave of your wand will put one of them out as well as transform the crystal into a life-saving piece of candy.

LEVELS 11-20

PUSHING BLOCKS

Mickey can shove ice blocks across one space of the castle floor. By sliding a cube, Mickey can uncover hidden items or reach blocked ladders. The mouse can also save apple sauce by pushing the frozen blocks into nearby nooses.

ON THIN ICE

Thin blocks of ice cover away areas of Levels 11-20. By centering Mickey on top of a block of thin ice, you can make your mouse crush the ice to reach an elevated item, or lower floor.

KING FISH

By freezing the entire surface of the pond, you'll make the fish surrender. The trout will occasionally peek its head above water to spit at you, but as long as you keep the center of the pond frozen, it won't be able to surface.

LEVELS 21-30

POLE VAULT

Enemies can leap from poles only after reaching the top, but Mickey can escape by leaping at any point of his climb.

ICE BLOCKADE

Keep enemies off your march by using your Ice Cube Wand to cover ledges or barricade passageways with a block of ice.

ICY STAIRS

Secret warp areas are often high out of reach. To get to them, create an ice block, top or toe at it, then create another. By repeating this process, Mickey can create a flight of frozen stairs.

YETI

Grab the crystals, then stand on either side of the room and throw all four apples at the stomping snowman. If you're on an upper level when the yeti stomps, you'll fall to the ground level. But, if you're on top of a pole, you won't fall.

LEVELS 31-40

BLOCK BUSTING

With his new wand, Mickey can shoot magic even if he doesn't have apples. However, start your attack early, because the wand takes a while to charge up. You can also fire the wand at any swirly-patterned blocks to destroy them.

TRAMPOLINES

Trampolines will launch Mickey straight into the air until he hits a ceiling. By moving the mouse to the left or right while he's in mid-flight, you'll be able to get him to a platform or ladder.

EVIL WIZARD

Create an ice cube near one of the side walls, then climb on top of the block to shoot the wizard. Once you've blasted her, she'll return in a larger form. After you've hit her six times, she'll shoot a fireball whenever she conjures up her protective shield. Once she shoots, fire back because her shield will briefly disappear.

OFFROAD CHALLENGE

MIDWAY'S OFFROAD CHALLENGE BOUNCES AND JUNCES DNTD THE N64 WITH ALL OF ITS ARCADE ACTION INTACT—AND A LITTLE MORE.

Eating Dust, and Loving it

Offroad Challenge for the N64 features all the jarring action that has made the game a hit in the arcades and on the Super NES for years, and with Rumble Pak support, it's set to shake, rattle and roll into North American homes this summer. Our preview version arrived from Midway with four tracks in racing condition and four trucks revved up for action. What we found was a faithful two-player arcade-based racer with obstacles everywhere, treacherous tracks, tormented animals and hot trucks. What more could we want? Well, maybe a little depth. The Challenge series, like Cruis'n USA, gains a lot of its speed by reducing the number of polygons on the screen, especially in the backgrounds and objects along the track. Like Cruis'n, Challenge can look flat if you concentrate on the scenery. But when you're flying along at close to 200 mph on a dirt track, rounding corners on two wheels and going airborne over every wrinkle in the road, you don't really have time to think about how thick that cactus was you just rammed through. For action and fun, Off Road Challenge brings the arcade thrill home.

Four Wheeled Beasts

Offroad Challenge begins in the showroom when you choose one of four sleek, four-wheel-drive vehicles to be your chariot of the boys. The Toyota trophy truck is modeled after Ivan "Ironman" Stewart's championship pickup. The other trucks give you a variety of weights, speeds and handling attributes. In addition to the four trucks shown here, there are another four hidden vehicles in the game, which you'll access only after winning various season challenges. (It has been rumored that one of them has seen military action.) After picking your truck, you'll choose from Automatic and Manual transmissions. Later, as you build up trophy dollars, and collect cash along the course, you'll be able to build up your truck even further.

CLASS 8 MINI-METAL

The Class 8 Mini-Metal is more of an all-around vehicle. It doesn't excel in any given area, but it is a good choice for any type of terrain.

BAJA BUGGY

The buggy is even lighter than the Toyota Trophy truck, but it's very fast and handles well. Going over the bumps, you'll catch lots of air.

CLASS 10 HEAVY-METAL

This bruiser may not be as fast as the Toyota Trophy truck, but it has good handling. If you can pack a lot of nitro for the race, you can really blaze with this monster.

TOYOTA TROPHY TRUCK

This is the truck that Ivan Stewart has driven to just about every off-road championship you can name. It's really light, but it handles well and has good speed.

Take the Money and Grin

Real off-road racing has plenty of danger and excitement without the need to pick up items on the track, but in Offroad Challenge, a big part of the game is scoring items and cash. The cash can be won by placing first in a race, or it can be found in Cash Boxes, usually in difficult-to-reach locations out of the fastest lane. You can use the money to upgrade your vehicle between races. The Offroad shop includes better engines, shocks, acceleration, and tires. You can stock up on extra shots of nitro, as well.

Cash Boxes are usually placed in awkward locations, and in this one you pay a penalty for picking it up, but it may be worth it in the end.

The money you earn can give you an advantage: speed or handling.

Nature Calling

Getting back to nature in a four-by-four with 300 horses under the hood and nitro injection might not be considered roughing it, but the game trails you'll be taking in Offroad

Challenge are as rough as a grizzly's beard. Speaking of bears, you'd better watch out for stray bruins on the Pike's Peak track. Wildlife is just one of the hazards you'll have to avoid in the Challenge. You'll also have to keep a lookout for heavy equipment, roadside fruit stands, and perhaps even witches from another world. Back down on earth, each track is a devilish mix of potholes, jumps, branching paths, twisting corners, plants, puddles, tunnels, mountains and even an ocean.

Most of each race takes place on unpaved surfaces consisting of sand, dirt, mud or snow, but the course can turn onto paved roads for short periods. Races cover one long stretch of track and never lap around, so learning the course is more difficult than in most racing games. Learning how to keep your tires on the ground will make all the difference. For now, let's take a ride on the wild side as we preview the beta courses.

Desert MOJAVE MADNESS BEGINNER

This desert course rattles bones and nerves. The cactus along the side of the track won't slow you down very much, but if you smash into a wall inside one of the many tunnels, you might as well kiss the race goodbye. A highway construction project about midway through the course changes the pace for a while as you turn onto pavement and face oncoming traffic, boxes of TNT and heavy machinery. The Mojave track may be designed for beginners, but it's still a test for the best.

Beach BAJA BADNESS BEGINNER

Baja California may be the most famous off-road racing site in the world, but this track passes through fields and onto the beach instead of heading out into the desert scrub. The challenges include dodging farm equipment and puddle-jumping along the ocean shore. The final stretch of the race pounds along a wooden pier. There are plenty of straight sections and lots of turns, making this an excellent beginner's race.

Brush

EL PASO PRICKLY PEAR

INTERMEDIATE

The Old West gives a new meaning to the phrase "eat my dust." These trucks lock up clouds of the stuff. On this course, you'll also have to race ahead of a freight train and dodge roadrunners who are trying to get to the other side. Wile E. Coyote isn't anywhere to be seen. This intermediate track has more twists, and the items are a bit harder to find and collect, than the beginner track.

Woods

OL' SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

ADVANCED

The deep south track is narrow and filled with treacherous pits. Numerous jumps and branching paths make it a strategic race from start to finish. It plunges into the deep forest, passes through corn fields, and leaps over sloughs on rickety wooden ramps—not a course for timid drivers. If you stay out of the woods, and out of the holes, you'll have a chance at the checkered flag, but this is truly a course for experts.

To Pick It Up Or Not

Along the tracks, and often off the tracks, racers will find useful items that can be picked up and activated during the race. Crash Helmets allow you to break through obstacles without losing speed, and Nitro canisters give you one speed boost that can power you into the lead. Nitro is probably the most important item to collect. Then there are the things you don't want to pick up, such as boxes of TNT. When you slam into one of these crates, it will blow up in a spectacular fireball in your face—not a good thing. Items always appear in the same place, though, so you can memorize the locations of the good and the bad.

FINISH

The Right Track

Midway continues to bring home the most popular games from the arcade to the N64. These games are never straight ports of code, but the design is supposed to make the N64 game as close as possible to the arcade version. Offroad Challenge manages to recreate the look and feel of the coin-up, and with the addition of the Rumble Pak, it may even go the arcade version one better. But the real excitement of Offroad Challenge comes from the game's sense of speed and the rollicking ride that will leave you hanging in the air, splashing through the water and challenging the roughest terrain in North America. The race begins this June when Midway releases Challenge, and Nintendo Power will be there with a course-by-course analysis and winning strategies.

WHO AM I EYE?

This month's Arms puzzles challenge you to take a closer look around. Here's a class full of a kind of growing lore. Give into those eyes and see if you can identify the owner of these puppers.

A CLOSER LOOK

When you're gaming, you will occasionally want to peel your eyes away from the action to check your score, inventory or health meter. More often, however, you'll spy your game stats out of the corner of your eye, since they usually appear near the edge of the screen. Just how keen is your peripheral vision? Test it by seeing if you can identify which games these close-up screen shots belong to.

The hottest hitter in the majors is just as hot on the N64.

Graphics Angel Studios hit this one out of the ballpark. The animation and 3-D models in Griffey look exceptional. Great care was taken to produce the life details that lend realism to the game, including motions such as underhanded infield throws and runners sliding off after sliding into second. Excellent camera AI and transitions from one view to the next keep you focused on the ball and the action.

ing control gives you the full range for each pitcher, plus enough movement to keep batters guessing.

GAME DESIGN MLB Featuring Ken Griffey Jr. has all the standard elements of a first-rate baseball sim, including trading and fantasy league options.

SATISFACTION It's fun and it looks great. In fact, this may be the most realistic baseball experience you'll ever have outside of a ballpark.

SOUND Excellent announcer and some colorful comments from Junior.

COMMENTS Scott: It took three years to get here, but it's worth every hour we had to wait. Dan: The choice of hitting systems is great. Paul: The best baseball game ever, bar none. Terry: Outstanding play control.

PLAYING The batting and pitching controls could set new standards for video baseball games. The batting control allows you to aim your swing and react to pitches. The pitch-

Acclaim has a blast in space.

Graphics: Some of the most spectacular explosions and lighting effects in the video game world give Forsaken a sense of explosive action. The textures of the areas are suitably gubby for the theme and the areas themselves seem huge, endless and filled with menacing pools of shadow.

Play Control: Iguana U.K. included two controller variations that seem to accommodate most players. Reaction time for flying and shooting is very good and speeds are fast. In spite of the breakneck pace, control is precise. Since virtually all buttons are used, some function is going to be awkward to access.

Game Design: The one-player game has plenty of areas and difficult missions to make it challenging. The AI of enemies and the size of the mazes add to the depth of the game. On the multiplayer side, the big mazes and cool weapons make it a blast.

Fun-Factor: For intense action in the one-player mode, or as a multiplayer battle or tag game, Forsaken 64 can stand with the best of them.

Audio: The explosive sound effects are critical for giving players clues regarding enemy fire. The music would be appropriate in a '70's cop show, but in space!

Acclaim reaches for the top with this unique N64 racer.

Graphics: Iguana doesn't disappoint when it comes to N64 graphics. The character "balls" in Reckin' Balls have lots of attitude and the animation is excellent. In four-player mode, the screen is chopped into quarters, so on levels with rotating tracks it can be difficult to see what's happening. The bigger the TV, the better.

Play Control: A tutorial mode helps teach players the special moves such as the jump and grapple. Although moves can be awkward, there are simplified controls for performing some of them.

Game Design: The game combines platform action with a racing goal, two very popular genres. The variety of modes and the 108 levels gives the game replayability and value.

Satisfaction: The vertical racing takes a little getting used to, particularly on some of the more complex tracks. Once you learn the basics, Reckin' Balls is both fun and challenging. It might be a mistake to consider this game as a title for young players only, since there are handicaps that can add to the challenge.

Audio: You would expect an upbeat, bouncy soundtrack, and Iguana delivers the goods.

Comments: Scott Unique, often fun, but just as often frustrating and repetitive. Jason: It's a Rube Goldberg rollercoaster ride wanna-be. Paul: It's different, but that may not be enough to justify its existence.

BOMBERMAN GB

- Nintendo 2 Megabits
- 1 to 4 players simultaneously (Multiplayer requires Game Link and four-player adapter.)
- 8 worlds

A big blast on a little screen.

Graphics The overhead view is the same as that used in previous versions of Bomberman, except for Bomberman 64 which is 3-D. GB makes good use of the Super Game Boy, but the graphics are also exceptionally sharp on Game Boy and Game Boy pocket.

Play Control Blowing up badies has never been easier. The puzzle elements of the different areas require timing but no difficult controller motions. Like previous Bomberman games, the complexity is in the mazes and puzzles.

Game Design Each of the seven areas of the Story Mode contains two different ways to play, essentially doubling the size of the game. The four-player mode isn't practical unless you have the Game Boy four-player adapter and four Bomberman Game Paks. How often does that happen?

Satisfaction The variety of puzzles keeps this game fresh throughout. It's a return to the basic bombing action of the first Bomberman games, which makes it nostalgic, as well.

Sound The simple music may not inspire you, but it may be annoying enough to make you want to bomb everything in sight.

Comments Sonja: Like all Bomberman games, the multiplayer mode is fun, but Mode A is too easy.

CLAY FIGHTER SCULPTOR'S CUT

- Interplay/128 Megabits
- 1 or 2 players simultaneously
- No Ramble Pak compatibility
- 4 new characters
- Available only at Blockbuster for rental

Will rental clay save the day?

Graphics Clay Fighter Sculptor's Cut includes the animation and finishing touches that should have appeared in the original release of Clayfighter 63%. The animation is one of the best parts of this wacky tournament fighter. A new 3-D intro sequence sets up the game much better than the one in the first N64 game did.

Play Control The control feels pretty much the same as the first game, and the moves, combos and claylizes haven't changed much. You have less 3-D rotational control since the action now takes place on tracks. Breakthroughs occur naturally during play.

Game Design This game includes several of the characters that were missing from the original game, including Lockjaw, the Zappa Yow Yow Boyz and others.

Satisfaction If you bought the original Clayfighter 63%, you're going to wonder why you didn't get this game instead. For those of you who rent Sculptor's Cut without prior Clayfighter experience, you'll have a good time.

Sound The sound is terrific, as it was in the original. The fighters are constantly saying rude things to each other. The intro includes a full song with lyrics.

Comments Scott: It's too bad we can't buy this game. It's much better than last fall's version Terry. Outstanding graphics, but those cute comments get old quickly.

Mickey is game for puzzle action on Game Boy.

GRAPHICS Although fairly simple, the graphics and animation in this action puzzle game are clear and well done. Items, obstacles and enemies are obvious, which makes the learning curve very gentle. Super Game Boy enhancements are limited to a simple border and clean color palette.

PLAY CONTROL Mickey is limited to walking, jumping and using the items he picks up, but the controls are responsive and fairly intuitive. Some items can be used only in particular locations, but those sites are easily found. Young hands or old should have no problem putting Mickey through his paces.

WHAT'S NEW? Stage by stage, the puzzles grow more creative, and new items, enemies and problems are presented for the player. The goals and the means of reaching the goals is very clear.

GETTING STARTED For a relatively easy puzzle experience, Mickey Mouse Magic Wands! does a good job. Younger Mickey fans will probably get the most out of this title.

SOUND The music is catchy but way too short. Since you won't get vital clues from the sound effects, you'll probably turn the sound down.

LUCASARTS RETURNS WITH MORE N64 STAR WARS ADVENTURE

Our breaking story this month proves that the Force is with the N64. LucasArts is working on a new 3-D adventure based on the Rogue Squadron Star Wars stories starring Wedge Antilles. Rogue Squadron has been a tightly kept secret at LucasArts over the past year, but Nintendo Power has been given the green light to talk about this upcoming title at last. Unlike Shadows of the Empire, Rogue Squadron is a sci-fi, flight-sim ulation shooter along the lines of the hit PC game, X-Wing. LucasArts has gone even further this time, giving players a variety of Star Wars spacecraft to fly in combat, such as the X-Wing fighter of the Rebellion or the Imperial TIE Fighter. And the combat takes place both on and off planet, so the variety of graphics and the strategies players must employ are changing constantly. For instance, one level will be played over snowy terrain like that on Hoth. In this area, you'll pilot a snowspeeder like the fea stage of Shadows of the Empire. Other levels will send you on missions in deep space. For the first time on a Nintendo system, LucasArts will publish the game themselves rather than licensing it to another publisher. That shows confidence in the quality of the game and the potential sales of top N64 titles. LucasArts plans to unveil Rogue Squadron at this year's E3 and release the game before the end of the year.

TUROK 2 TAGGED FOR MULTIPLAYER ACTION

The biggest news out of Austin, Texas these days isn't about the beautiful graphics in All-Star Baseball '99 or the unique game play of Igg's Reckin' Balls. The biggest news is reserved for the biggest title from Acclaim and Iguana Entertainment, and that is Turok 2. Set to launch this August, or perhaps a little later if development requires the time, Turok 2 will see depth added in every technical and game playing area from its classy predecessor. It may sound like a tall order, but it's being done as you read this article. But back to the big news, Turok 2 will feature multiplayer action matches in addition to the one-player adventure game.

Play Frog Tag

As a big fan of GoldenEye 007, David Dierpiets, who leads the Turok 2 project, told Pak Watch early in development that he wanted to include a unique multiplayer angle to the game. He's done that with an innovative mode called Frog Tag. In Frog Tag, one player is designated as "it." He or she has no weapon, wears a target, and squeals with fear while running for cover. The "it" player must reach a designated safe goal while the "non-it" try to hunt "it" down. If "it" makes it to the goal, a new "it" is chosen and named. The multi-player characters include Turok himself, a Pui-lin, and a rapoor along with four other characters.

Beyond the Campaigner

The story of Turok 2 begins with the end of Turok. Dinosaur Hunter, when the hero throws the Chronosceptor into the volcano. This act awakens an even more malevolent enemy, a fiend named The Primagen. The action takes off when Turok reaches the port city of Adia, which has been plundered recently by the Dinosaur troops of the Primagen. As Turok passes through each of eight, huge new worlds, he finds evidence of the Primagen's awful wrath: Blood smeared on walls, damage everywhere, fires burning in the streets and lots of enemies waiting for Turok. Each of these eight worlds has a distinct look that is characteristic of the race that lives there.

More coolness

Within these worlds, Turok will meet 45 types of enemies, including boss characters and families of other creatures such as the heavy Pui-lin and the creepy flesheaters. Careful attention has been given to the AI of enemies, with each enemy exhibiting unique behaviors and attacks. Turok will collect an incredible assortment of weapons, as well, just as in the first game. Iguana isn't revealing details about other the bosses or weapons just yet, because they don't want to give away the shop. All we can tell you, having seen some preliminary work on the game, is that the weapons and bosses are very cool. Considering all that we've seen to date, we feel safe in predicting that Turok 2 will be a major event on the N64.

Adia was once an elegant, coastal trading town.

Fires are still burning after the passage of the Dinosaur troops through Renaissance.

The flesheaters are coming...

Pak Play

Hands-on previews of upcoming games.

MORTAL KOMBAT IV IS THE END GAME

Midway's N64 version of Mortal Kombat IV ushers in the 3-D generation of MK in graphics and game play. From the developers at Eurocom, MK IV arrived at Pak Watch humming along at an impressive 60 frames per second, and it's only about 50% to 60% done. The 3-D element is best used to give extra drama to the fight, but players will be able to sidestep and dodge using a rotation control, adding extra strategy to each bout. The polygonal characters can be used in another way—to tell each character's game end story when you win the tournament. Eurocom created excellent cinematic animations and included full voice dialogue to go along with them. With seven old characters and eight new characters, plus several hidden characters who don't appear in the arcade game, MK IV for the N64 has a lot of stories to tell. For MK fans, this may be the biggest payoff of all. That payoff should be here by the end of June or early July.

F-1 BY ANY OTHER NAME

World Grand Prix from Video Systems may be just a temporary name for this two-player racer, since an F-1 license seems to be imminent. The cars look like F-1 racers, sound like F-1 racers, race on F-1 tracks and use F-1 drivers. Paradigm Entertainment, the same developer that programmed Blowings 64 and Aerofighters Assault, has created a very realistic racer that recreates the look of open-wheeled racing with play control that seems more arcade-like. The biggest plus for race fans has got to be the two-player mode, though. The numbers look something like this: 27 drivers and cars, 22 CPU opponents, 17 tracks, 31 teams. All this speed is packed into 96 megabits with an EEPROM for saving the game on the Game Pak. Grand Prix also features the '97 racing schedule, ghost drivers, Rumble Pak support, and a replay mode. Video Systems plans to wave the green flag in July.

WORLD CUP '98

PAK
WATCH

Soccer's final bash of the century is set to get started in France this summer, and EA Sports is ready to cash in on the hoopla with the best title so far in its growing family of N64 soccer games. World Cup '98 improves on every category over the previous game, FIFA Road to the World Cup '98, which itself was a vast improvement over the first FIFA 64 game. The animation is spectacular, and control has been tightened up. Our resident soccer hooligans all gave two thumbs up to this latest effort from the development team at EA Canada. Matches are played in the ten actual stadiums that will be used during the World Cup. Modes include Friendly Matches, the World Cup Tournament, a Penalty Shootout, and Cup Classics. You can also use the Training Mode to get yourself up to speed. The game is finished now, so you can expect it in the stores this month.

IT'S A GECKO'S LIFE

Gex, the versatile, reptilian star of Gex II: Enter the Gecko, from Midway and Crystal Dynamics, romps through 30 stages that parody popular TV and movie themes. Our test drive version of Gex was about 50% complete and still had a lot of bugs, but the basics looked promising. Gex's mission is to save television programming from a diabolical program thief named Rez. To do so will require Gex to enter shows with themes that range from Indiana Jones to James Bond. In each area, the gecko must find an assortment of objects, including remote control units that open up bonus areas. Puzzles, enemies and traps must be overcome in fairly large 3-D worlds. The game play, not to mention the camera controls, take a page from the Mario 64 handbook of game design, and the graphics are as varied as the different TV shows they mock. But is it a mockery of a game? We think not. Gex has all the elements to become a hit. You should start looking for Gex in July.

Gex scavenges through 3-D worlds filled with obstacles trying to collect items.

This music and setting may seem like Indiana Jones, but Gex is rather partial to reptiles.

Pak Peek

What's breaking in the world of games.

Color Game Boy is on the Way

After years of speculation and rumor by video game fans around the world, Nintendo of America confirmed that a new Game Boy featuring color graphics would be ready for release in 1998. Color Game Boy will display sharp and vivid color graphics on a new type of color reflective screen for play indoors or outdoors. The new technology will allow the simultaneous display of 56 bright colors out of a palette of 32,000. It will be approximately the same size as Game Boy pocket and have about ten hours of game play time on a set of batteries. The sketch above is an early rendering from NCL and doesn't reflect the final design.

The best news is that Color Game Boy will support all existing Game Boy titles, which will be playable in palettes of 10 colors. Future Game Boy titles will be programmed with the full color capability of the new Color Game Boy. The new Color Game Boy will also link with the N64, making transfer of game data from the Game Boy to the N64 a snap. The next generation of Game Boy could well lead the portable gaming world for another ten years.

Psygnosis crosses over to the N64

Pak Watch's third major breaking story of the month is as big in its own way as the LucasArts and Color Game Boy stories. Psygnosis, one of the leading publishers of video games for the PlayStation, has announced a development agreement with Nintendo to create N64 titles. What makes this news all the more amazing is that Sony owns a substantial share of the UK-based Psygnosis. The company plans to create exclusive N64 titles and updated, N64 versions of some hit PSX games. At least four unnamed titles are currently in development. They will be unveiled at E3 later this month, and Nintendo Power will cover them in the June issue. Until then, consider that Psygnosis has hundreds of programmers, artists, designers and other development professionals known for creative, quality games, and now they will have the power of the N64 to unleash their talents.

Et tu, Activision, et tu?

Psygnosis isn't the only major PSX publisher to shift gears and announce that it has begun development of N64 games. Activision, a long-time publisher of NES and Super NES games, has also seen the light. Pitfall: The Mayan Adventure was the last Activision title for a Nintendo system. Nightmare Creatures will be the next game, due out by the end of the year. Development of the game is underway at Angel Studios, the makers of MLB Featuring Ken Griffey Jr. Welcome back.

Bust-A-Move on N64

Not all arcade hit games take the form of tournament fighters, fantasy sports titles, or racing games. Taito's Bust-A-Move has seen remarkable success in the arcades even though it's just a humble puzzle game. Acclaim hopes to match that success in the home market with an N64 version of Bust-A-Move 2. The appeal of Bust-A-Move may be its simplicity, or perhaps the sense of action players feel as they aim the shooting arrow and fire their marbles. Or maybe it's the satisfaction of seeing an entire board full of marbles fall after a sweetly aimed shot. Whatever the reason for its popularity, Bust-A-Move 2 recreates the exact experience on the N64. Don't expect mind-blowing graphics like those in Banjo-Kazooie or Tarok 2. But if you love Bust-A-Move, this game will look good to you.

More on N64

This month's announcements of new titles begins with GT Club, a racer from Imagineer and Ocean and a sort of sequel to MRC. Midway has added yet another future game, Micro Machines V3. Even more exciting to veteran gamers is the announcement of Gauntlet 3D from Midway, which is in development at Atan Games. At Virgin Interactive, Freak Boy may have sunk without a trace, but Golden Nugget 64, a 64-bit gambling game, is moving full steam ahead.

Last, but certainly not least, Nintendo of

COMING SOON

America is bringing True Golf Classic: Waialae Country Club to the N64. T&E Soft released the game in Japan as The Masters, but because of licensing restrictions, the tournament in Augusta can't be used in the United States. Waialae Country Club is known as one of the best courses in the world, and it's certainly one of the most beautiful.

Where are they now?

It seems that there are always games that never end up on the store shelf in spite of considerable developmental effort. In case you've been wondering, here's an update: Bugge Boogie, starring transforming vehicles, was in development at Angel Studios until recently, but Nintendo finally pulled the plug. The problem was not the cool buggies, but what players would do with them. No one knew if it was supposed to be a racer or an action game. At Virgin Interactive, the long-awaited Freak Boy was shelved, thankfully, after at least three attempts failed to bring the project together.

Dual Heroes, Hudson Soft's tournament fighter, also had trouble putting it all together, but the latest word from Hudson is that they're still trying. Ultra Descent from Inteplay has never gone beyond the proposal stage. As for Inteplay's earthworm Jim 3D, it's still alive and squirming although it has gone through a major redesign effort at Vis Interactive. Perhaps the grand daddy of all delayed projects is Robotech from Gamesek First announced when the N64 was still known as the Ultra 64, Robotech has faced monumental obstacles, including an understaffed development team and Gamesek's Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings. Even so, Gamesek gamely pushes on, insisting that Robotech is on its way. You've got to love optimism like that.
